

Refined Interiors, Thoughtfully Crafted

Inkfield offers a comprehensive interior design service taking care of a project from initial space planning to accessories and dressing, with a holistic approach. Architecture and spatial design should come hand in hand with joinery appearance and use, which in turn is what informs the entire soft package and viceversa. The most important element of the soft package is decorative lighting which is closely connected back to the architecture thus closing the circle. An interior design project is a machine of cogs not a linear process.

About

Inkfield is an interior design studio specialising in residential high end projects.

Maria Capussela, director, has over 10 years experience in the sector in London and abroad. Her formative years in Italy and Australia were a 50/50 of technical, traditional interior architecture training and of conceptual fine arts (photography and installation). London was where she honed her skills in the residential interior design sphere and where she started Inkfield in 2017.

Every project is unique as intrinsically linked to the equally unique requirements and preferences of the individuals that will inhabit the space, and the nature of the building itself and its surroundings.

With this is as the basic postulate, style and concept approach vary and fluctuate accordingly.

A strong belief in good quality and the importance of skilled craftsmanship is the underlying driving force in giving shape and texture to such styles.

Luxury beauty and hair salon specialising in high end fashion styling and aesthetic medicine

The brief from the client was in two-fold and simple: to lift the original beauty of the site and for the atmosphere to be representative of the beauty of comfort. The unavoidable need for equipment and an ergonomic work space needed to blend in the 19th century architectural features and painted ceilings.

In parallel it is necessary that the clientele is looked after with high tech treatments and the highest level of professionalism, which needed to marry an utmost feeling of comfort and relaxation.

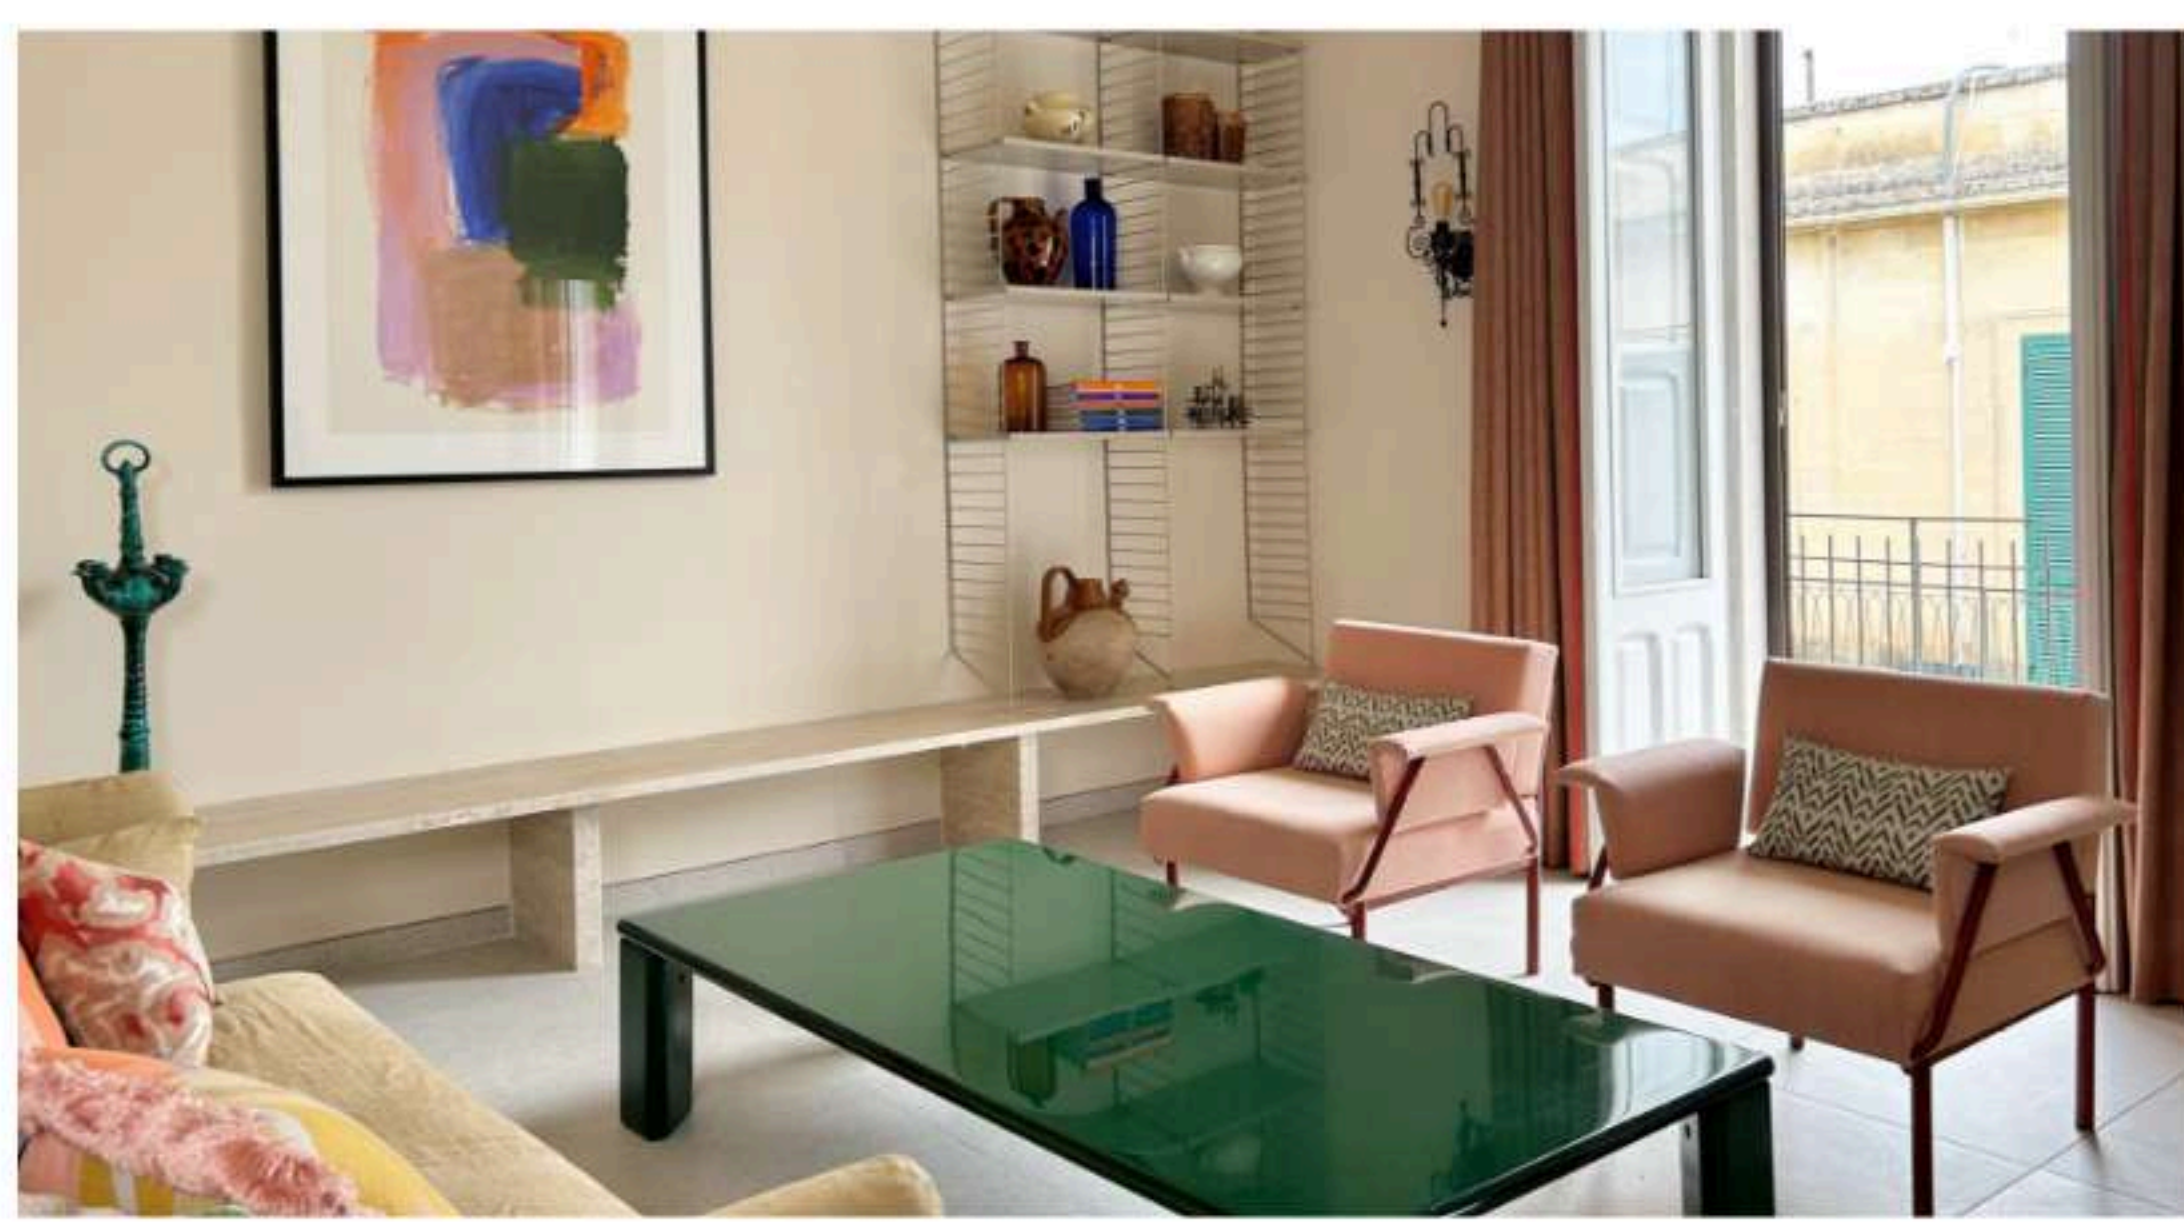

Taken in its holistic sense and translating it into a design concept it meant eliminating jarriness. Nothing stands out so that everything stands out.

Elements balance off one another to be background and hero of one another. The original features of the building did half the job, and were starting point to the design process. Everything else in those main reception rooms has a soft minimalistic language where monolithic geometries made comfortable to sight and touch by the materials chosen. These house all the practical elements of the salon, leaving the beauty of the building untouched and able to stand alone.

A general feeling of homeliness needed to reconcile seamlessly with the experience of being the only one that matters.

Each styling station with precious gold leaf and marble details defines the clients' own private space by being hidden inside the monolithic built in joinery. The armchair and side tables were carefully selected to convey that very easy comfort of a relaxed living room.

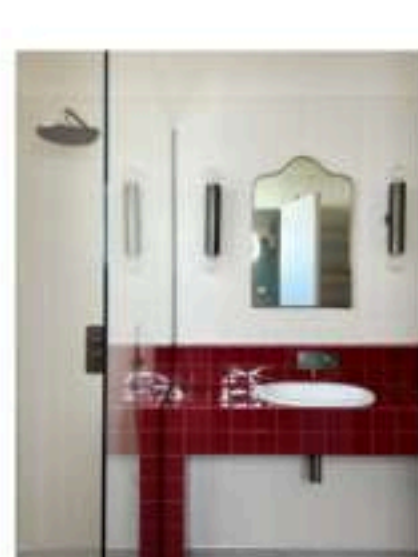

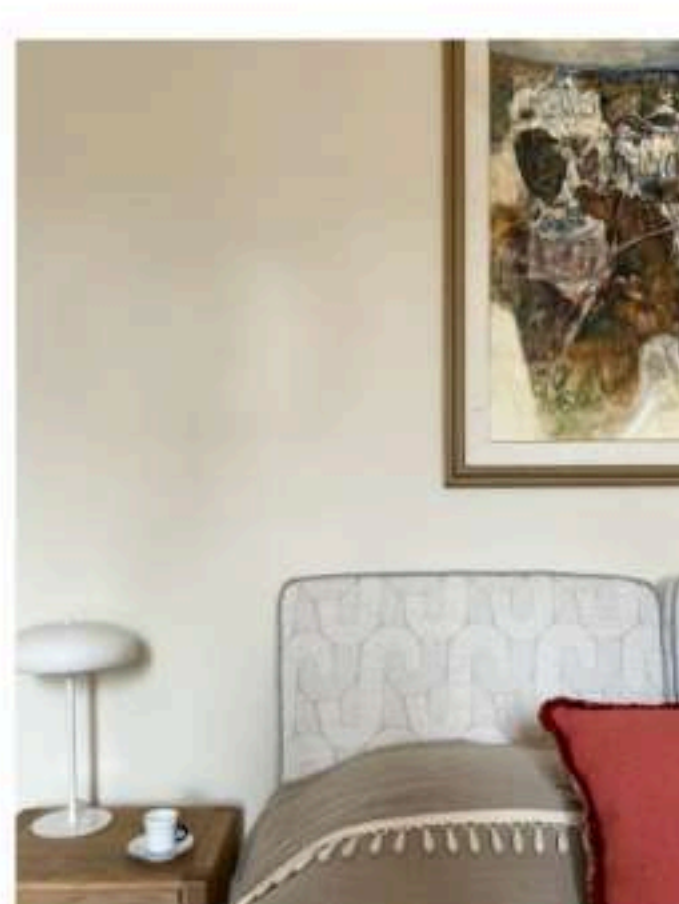

Similarly the medical treating rooms have a luxurious private dressing room feel to convey comfort.

Lecce, Boutique Bnb

Bespoke joinery encasing styling station.

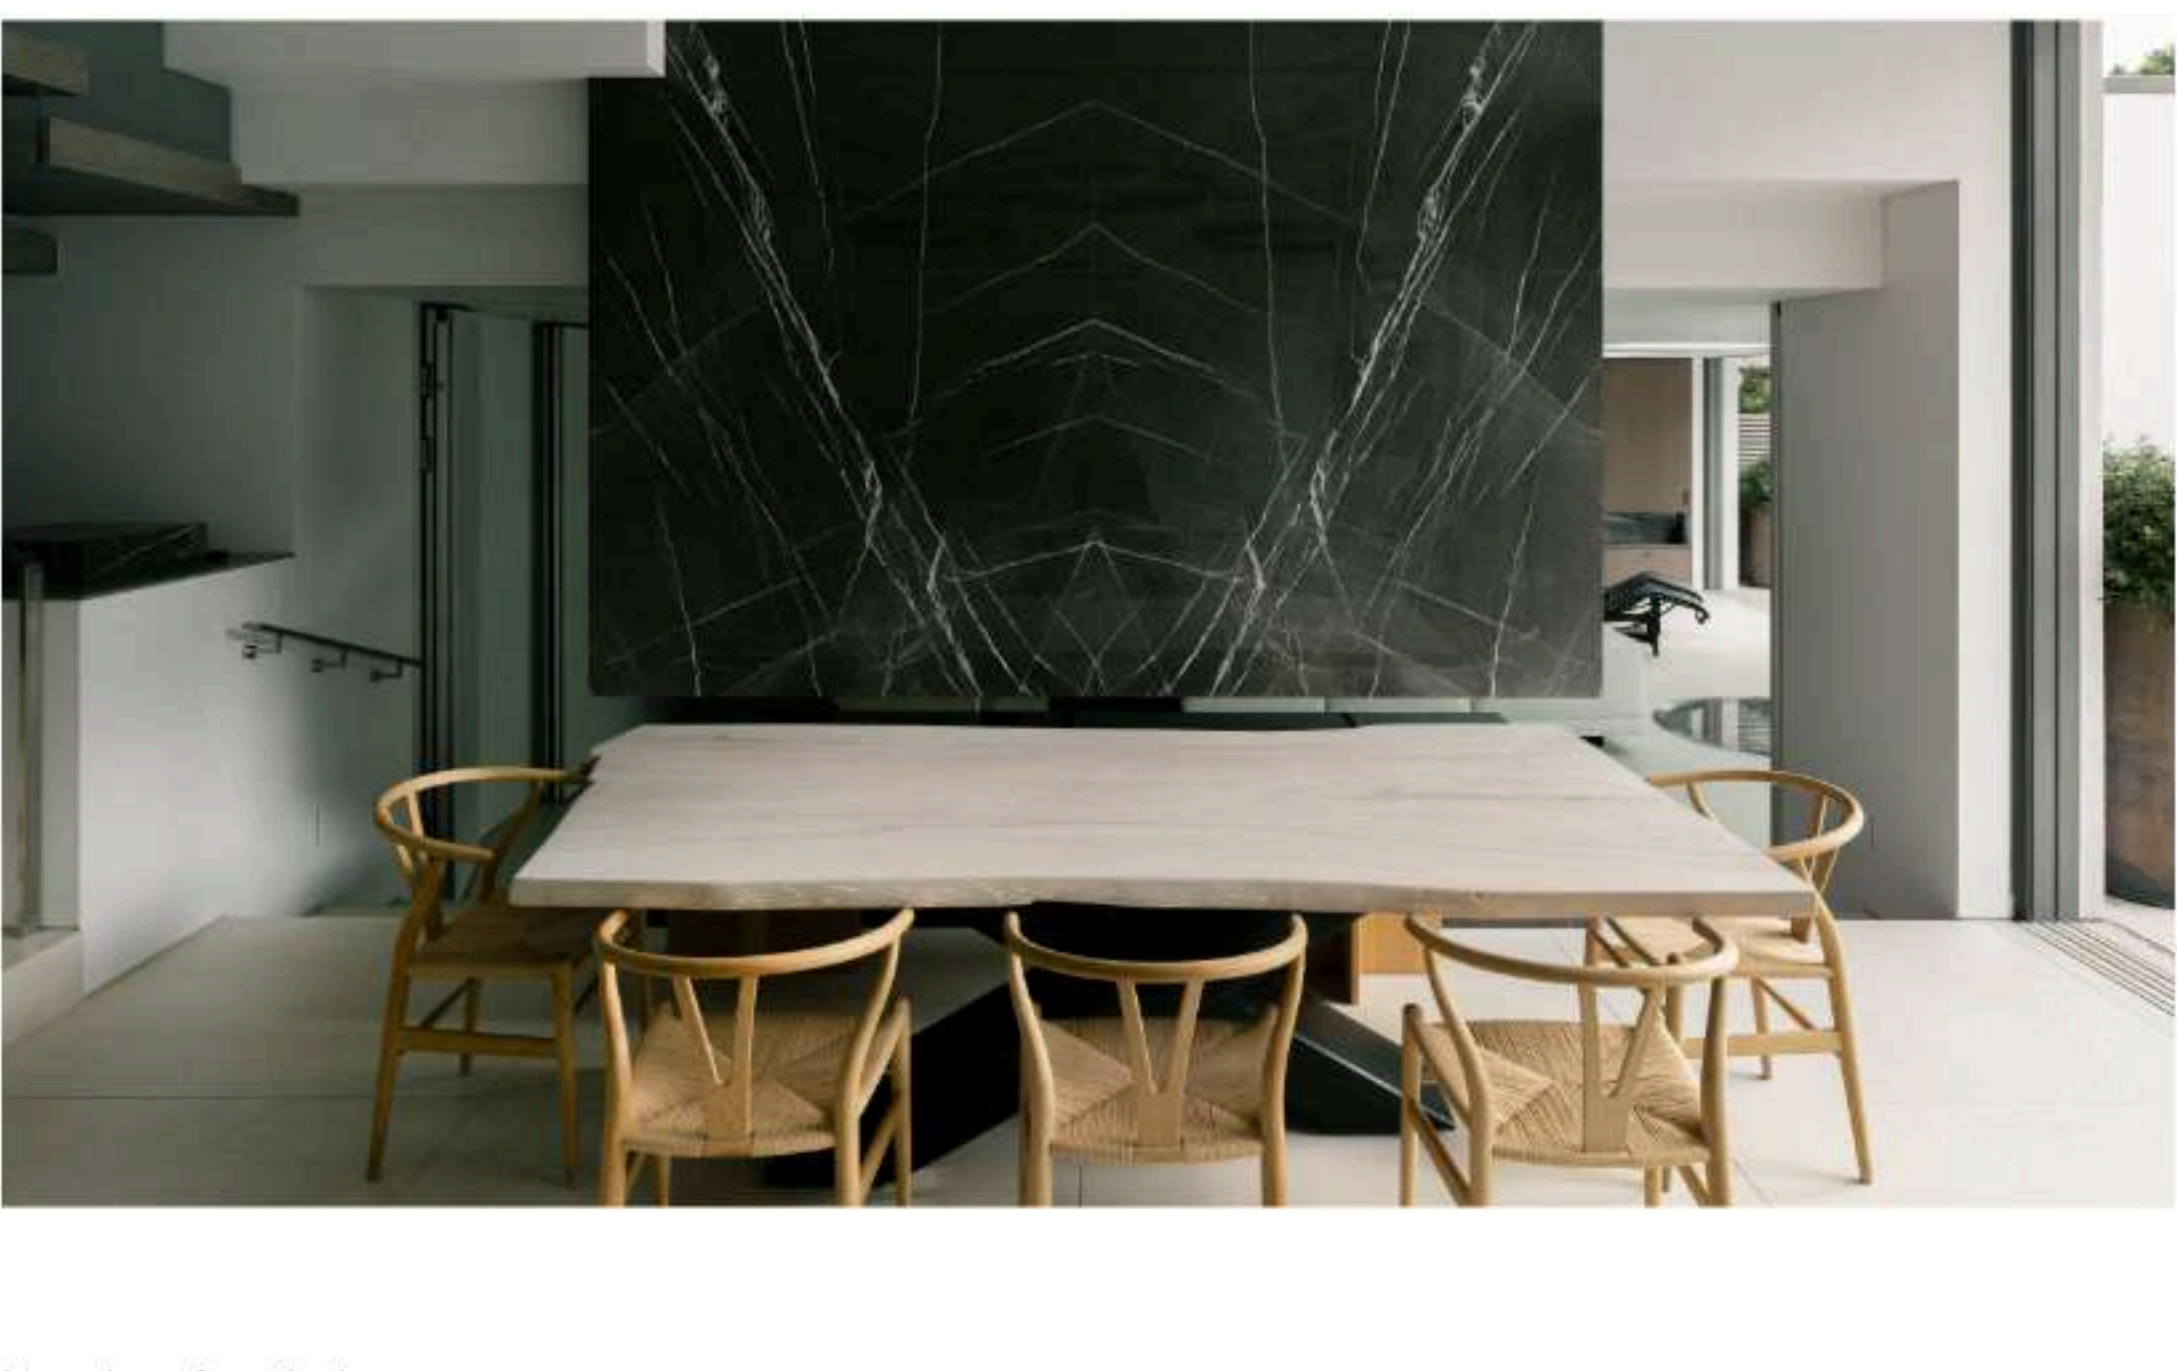

Residential

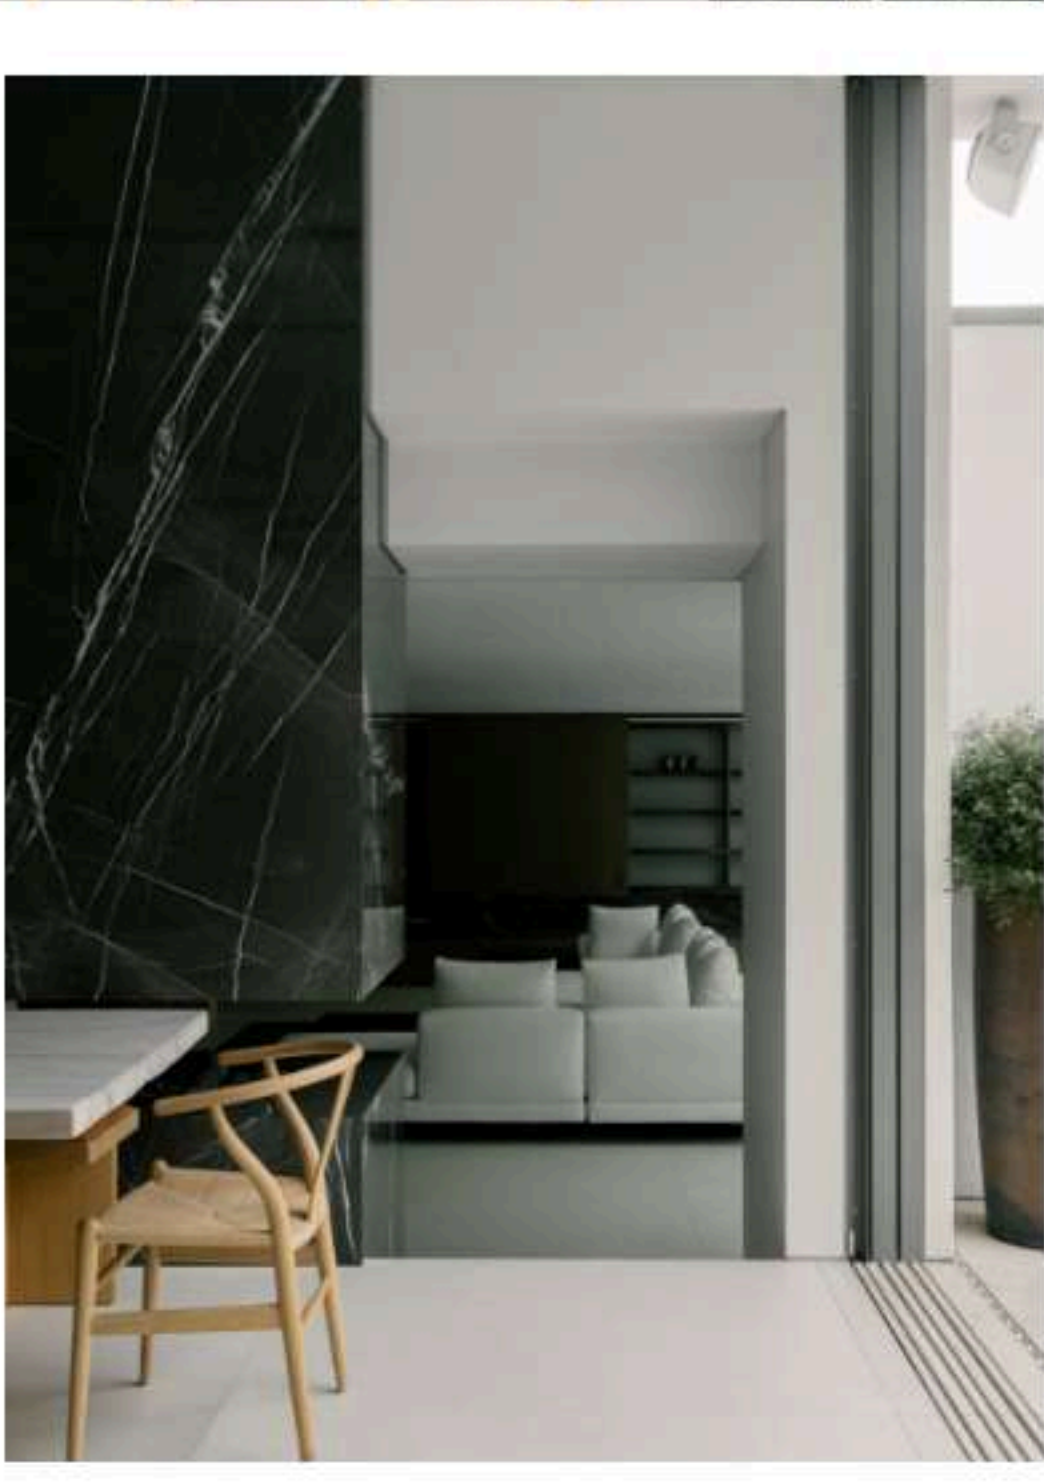

Complete refurbishment of an apartment into a boutique bnb

Situated at the heart of the baroque jewel that is Lecce in the southern most tip of Italy where the sun, the sea and the wind reign supreme.

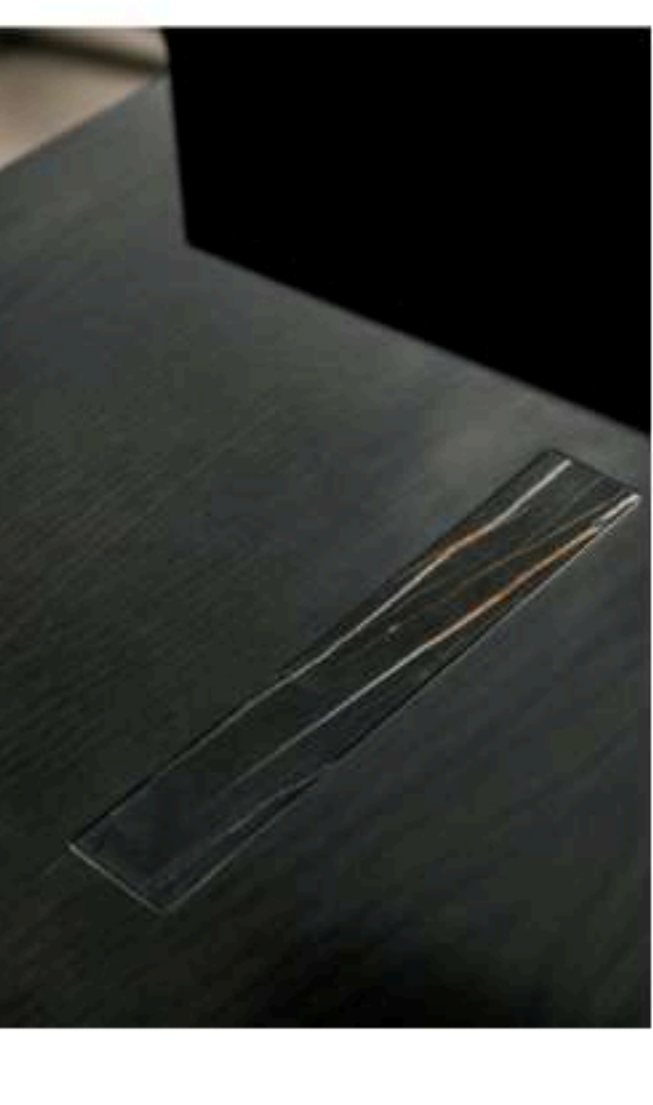

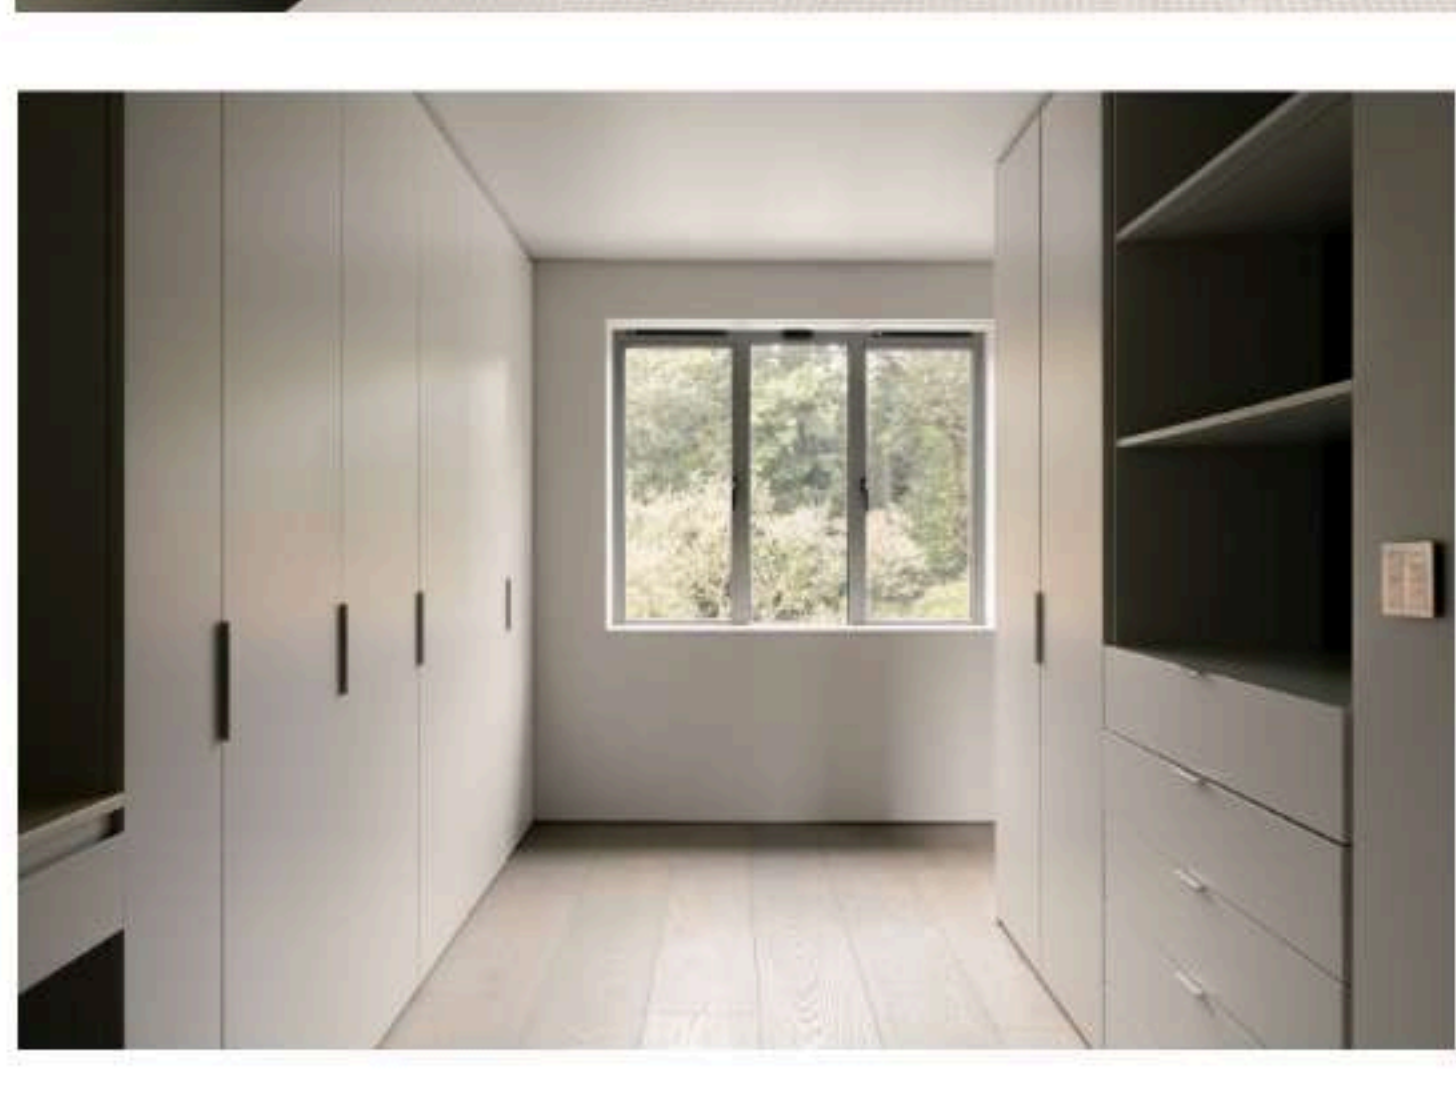

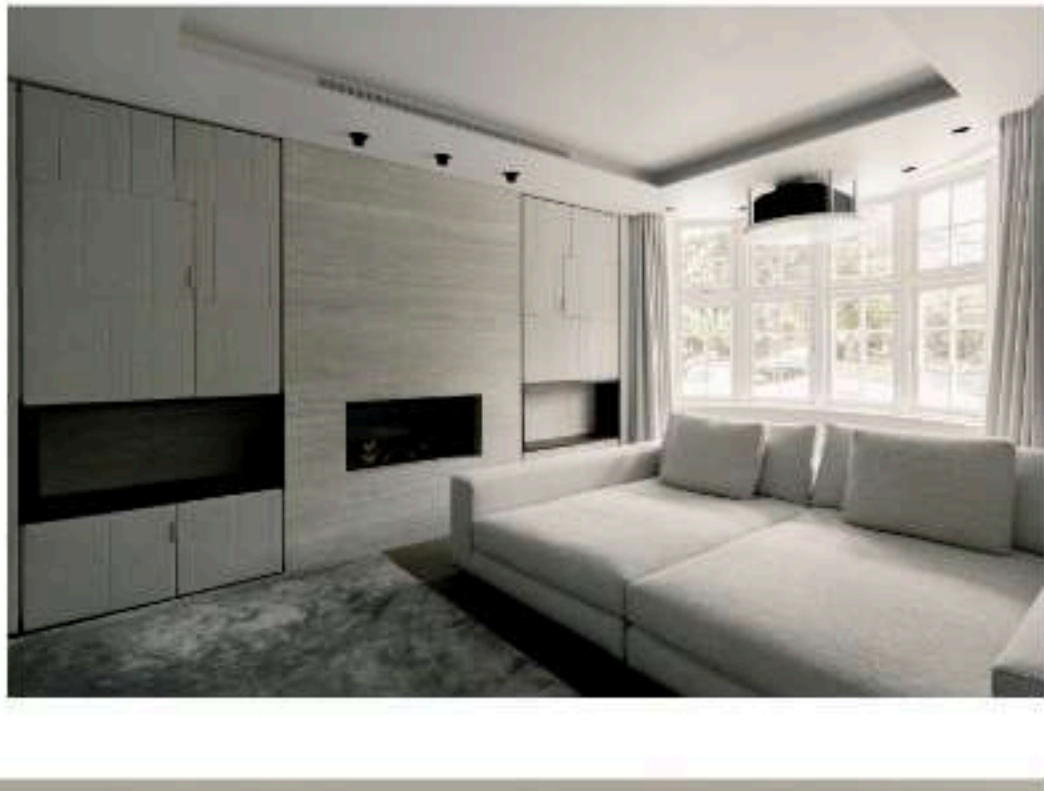

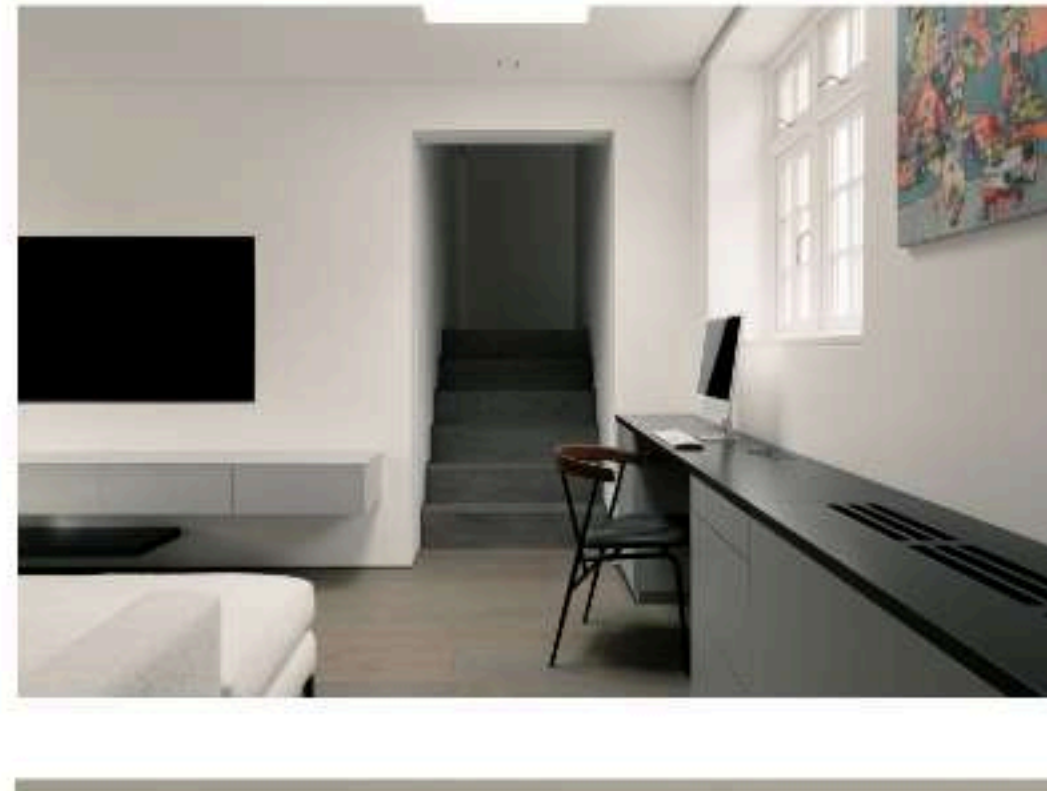

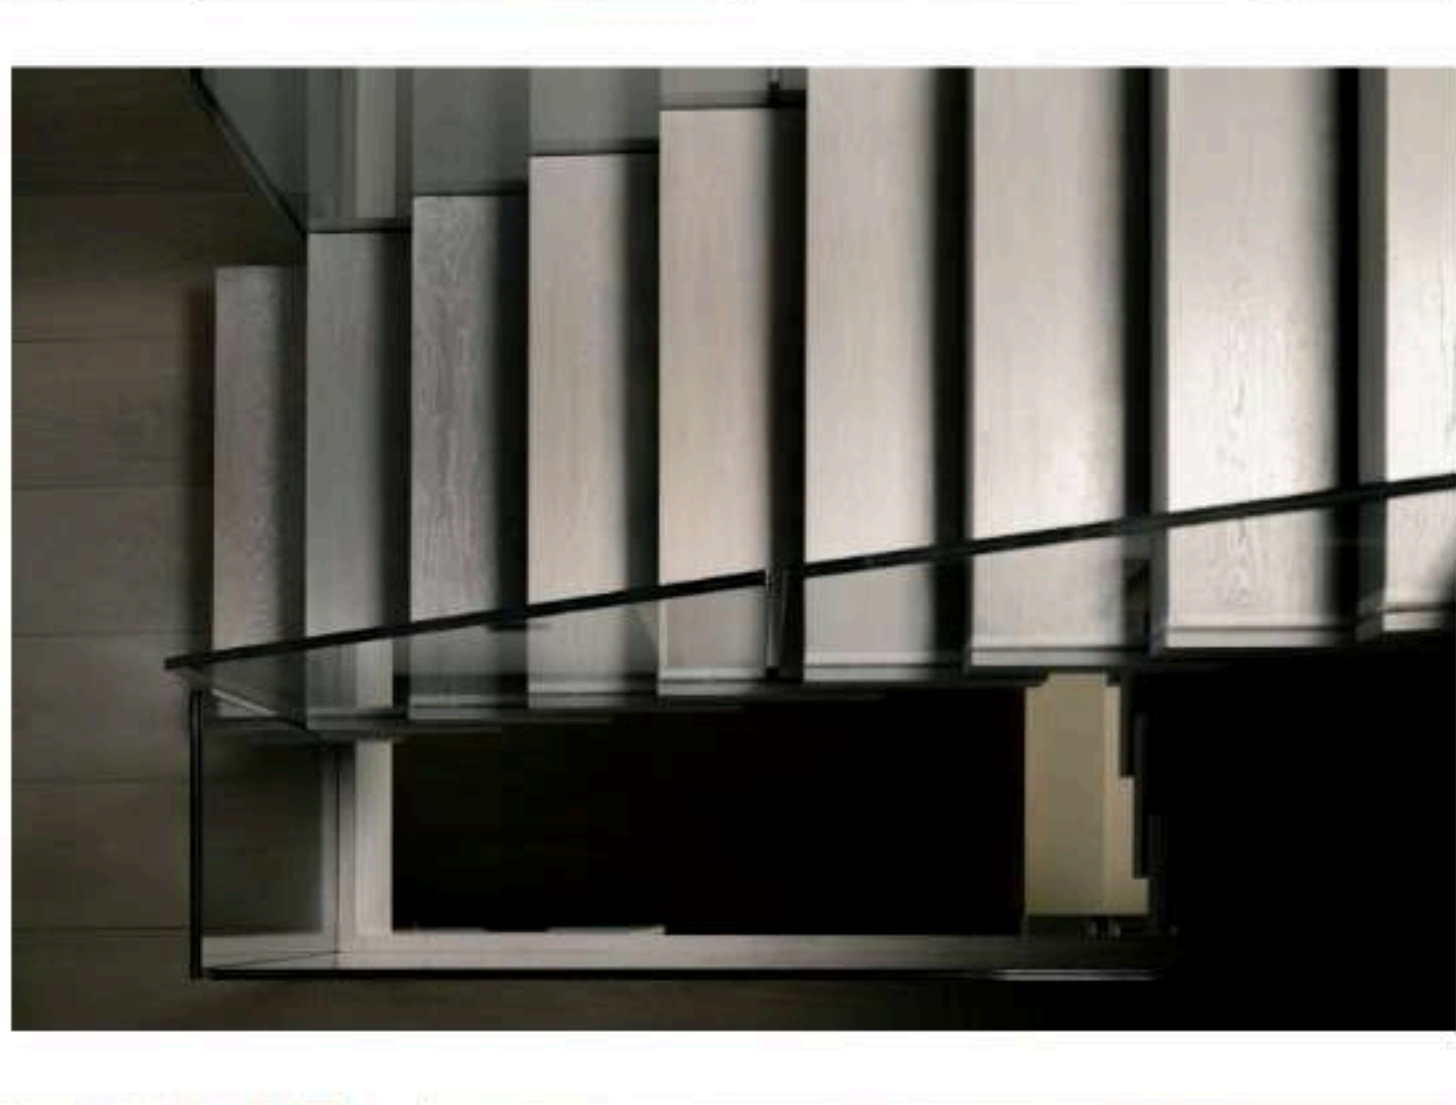

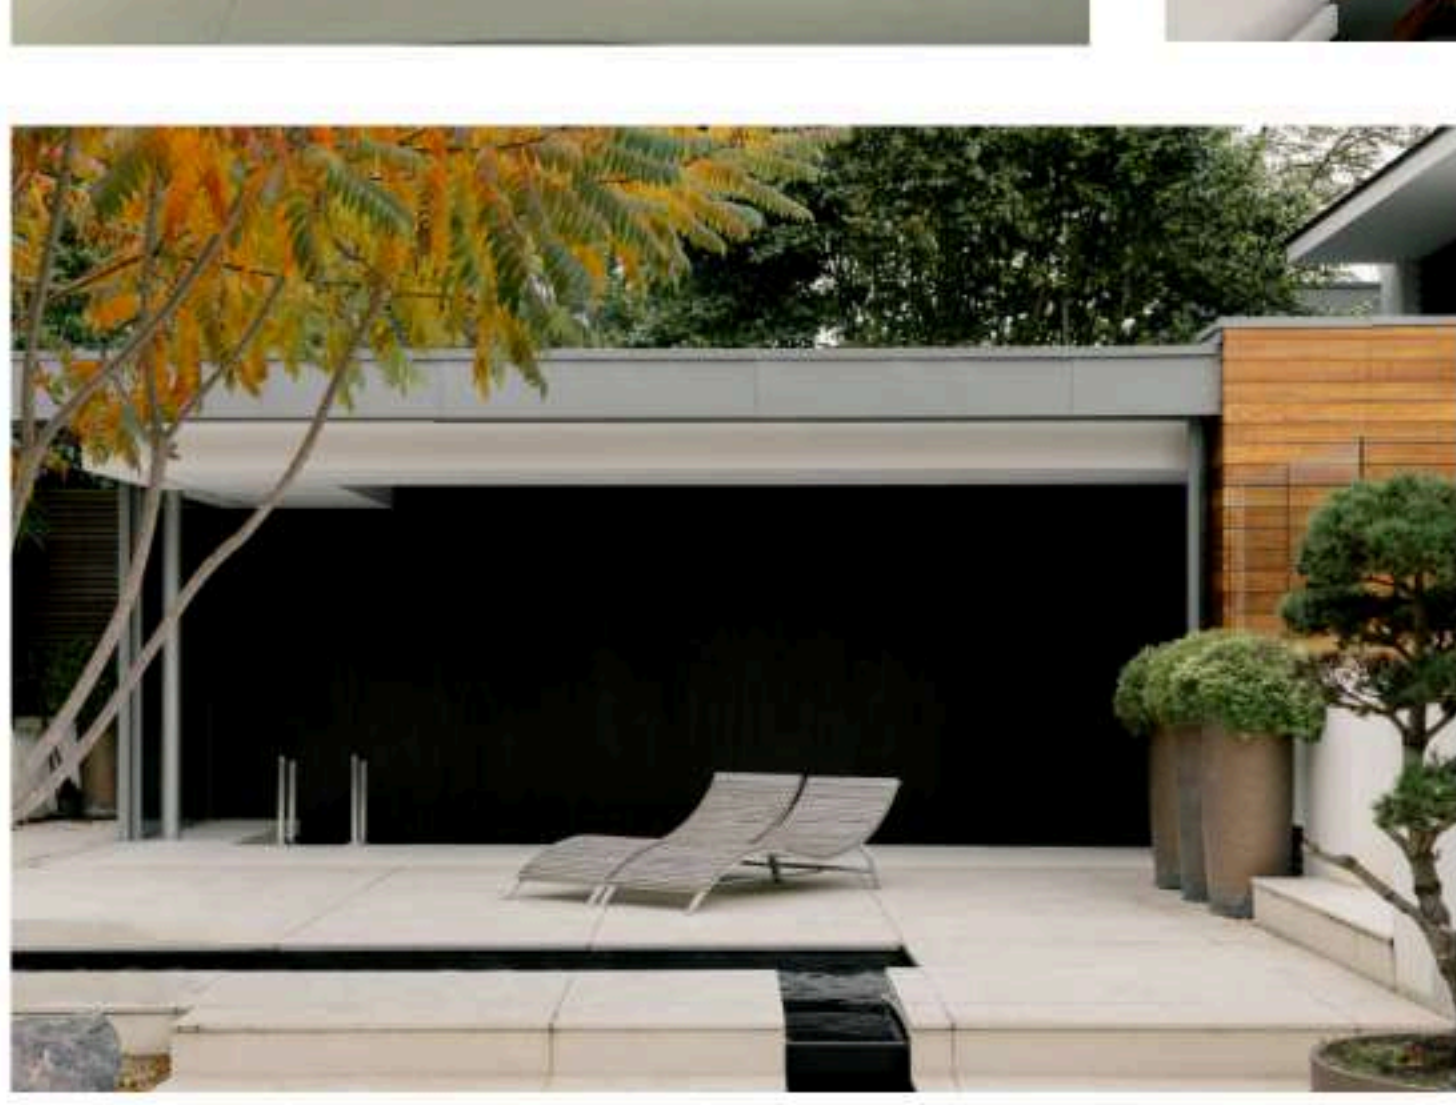

The brief was to create a space that was true to its location, comfortable and easy like a seaside holiday yet sophisticated and lush enough to reflect the nature of the city.

London family home

Residential

Complete renovation of 2 separate 1930s houses merged together.

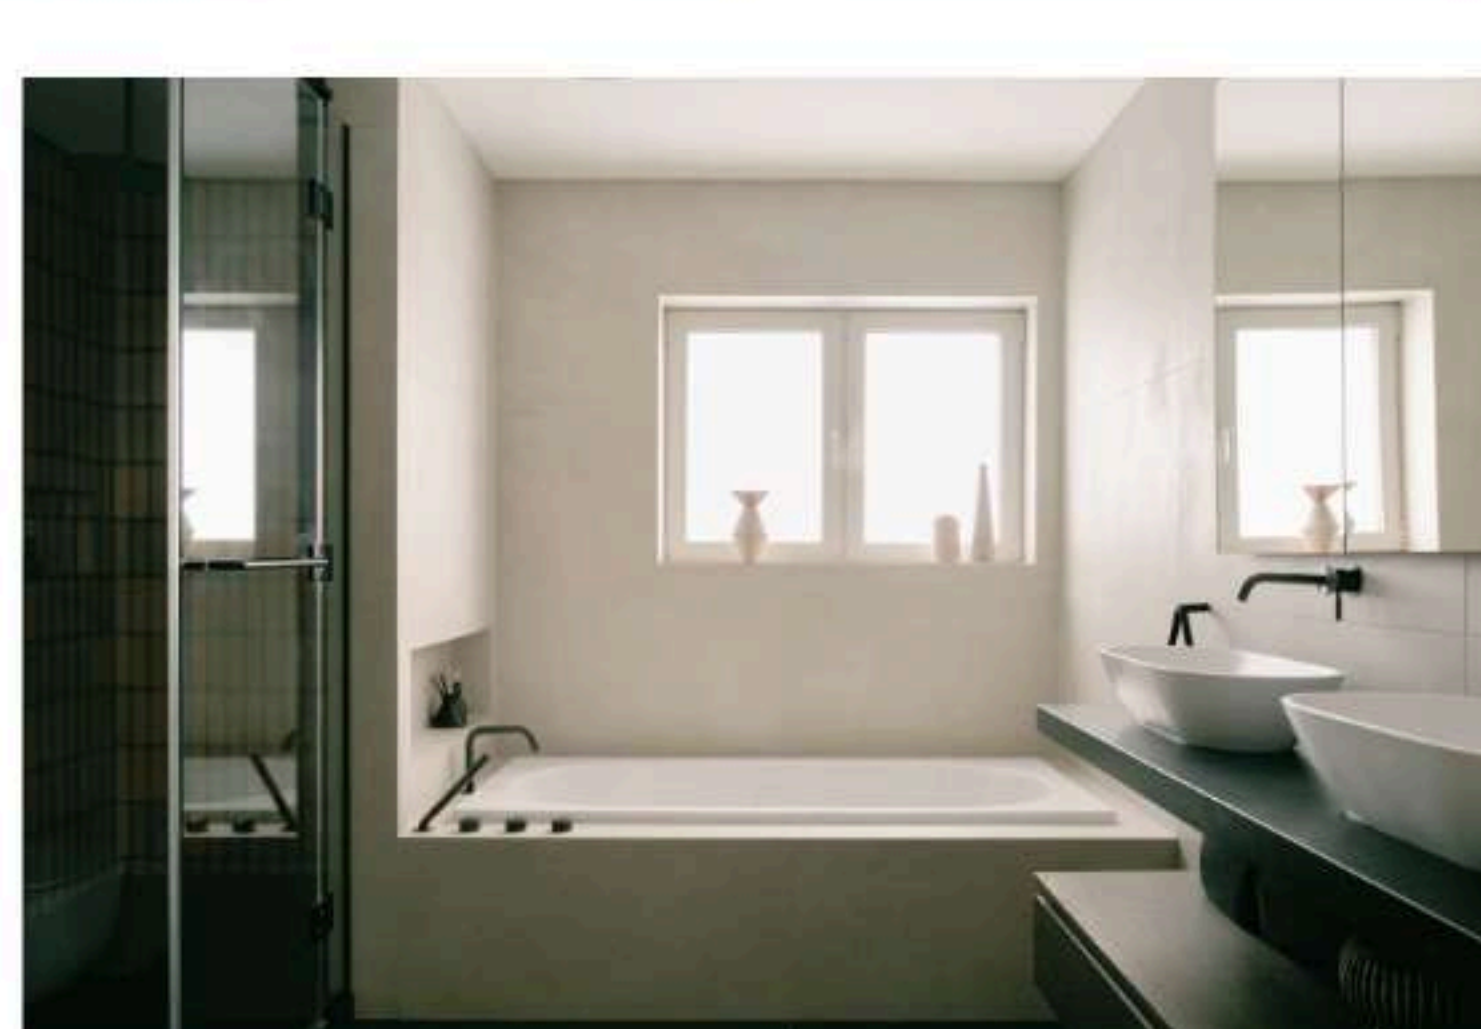

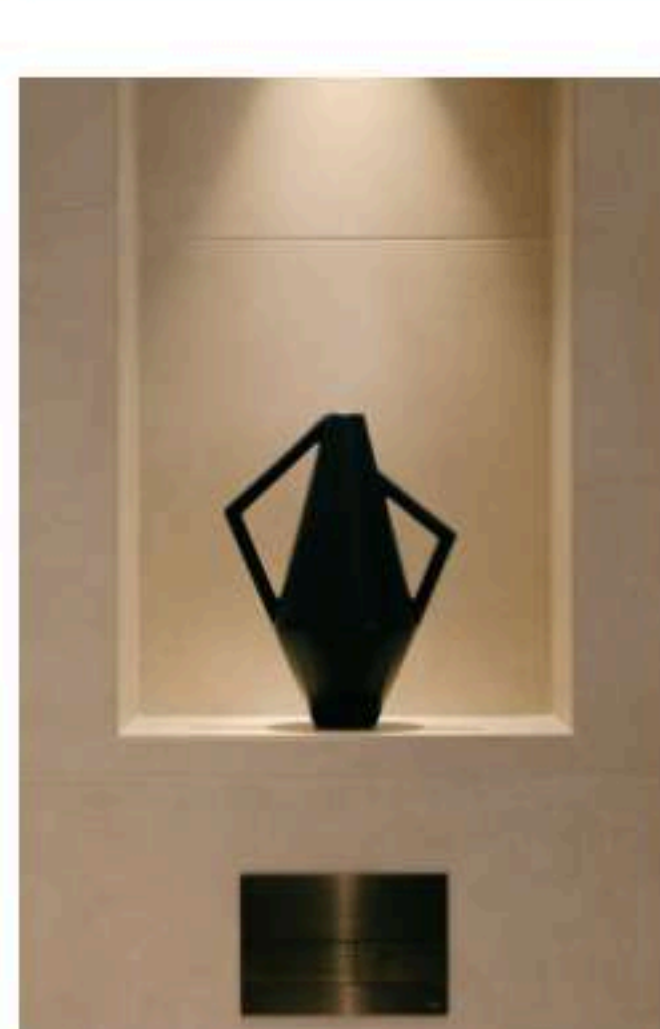

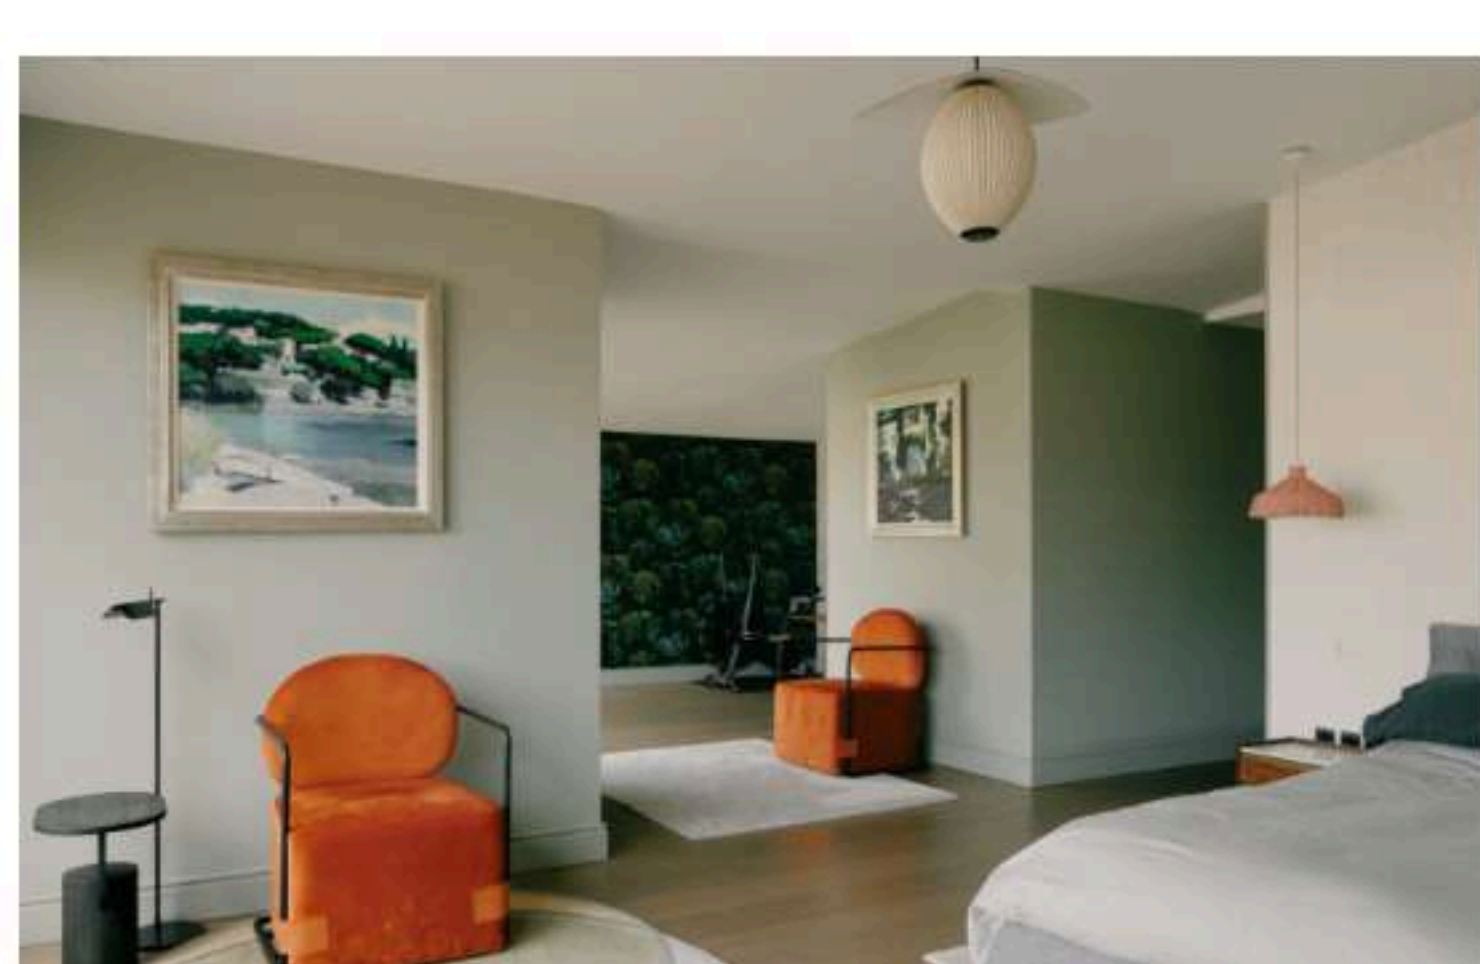

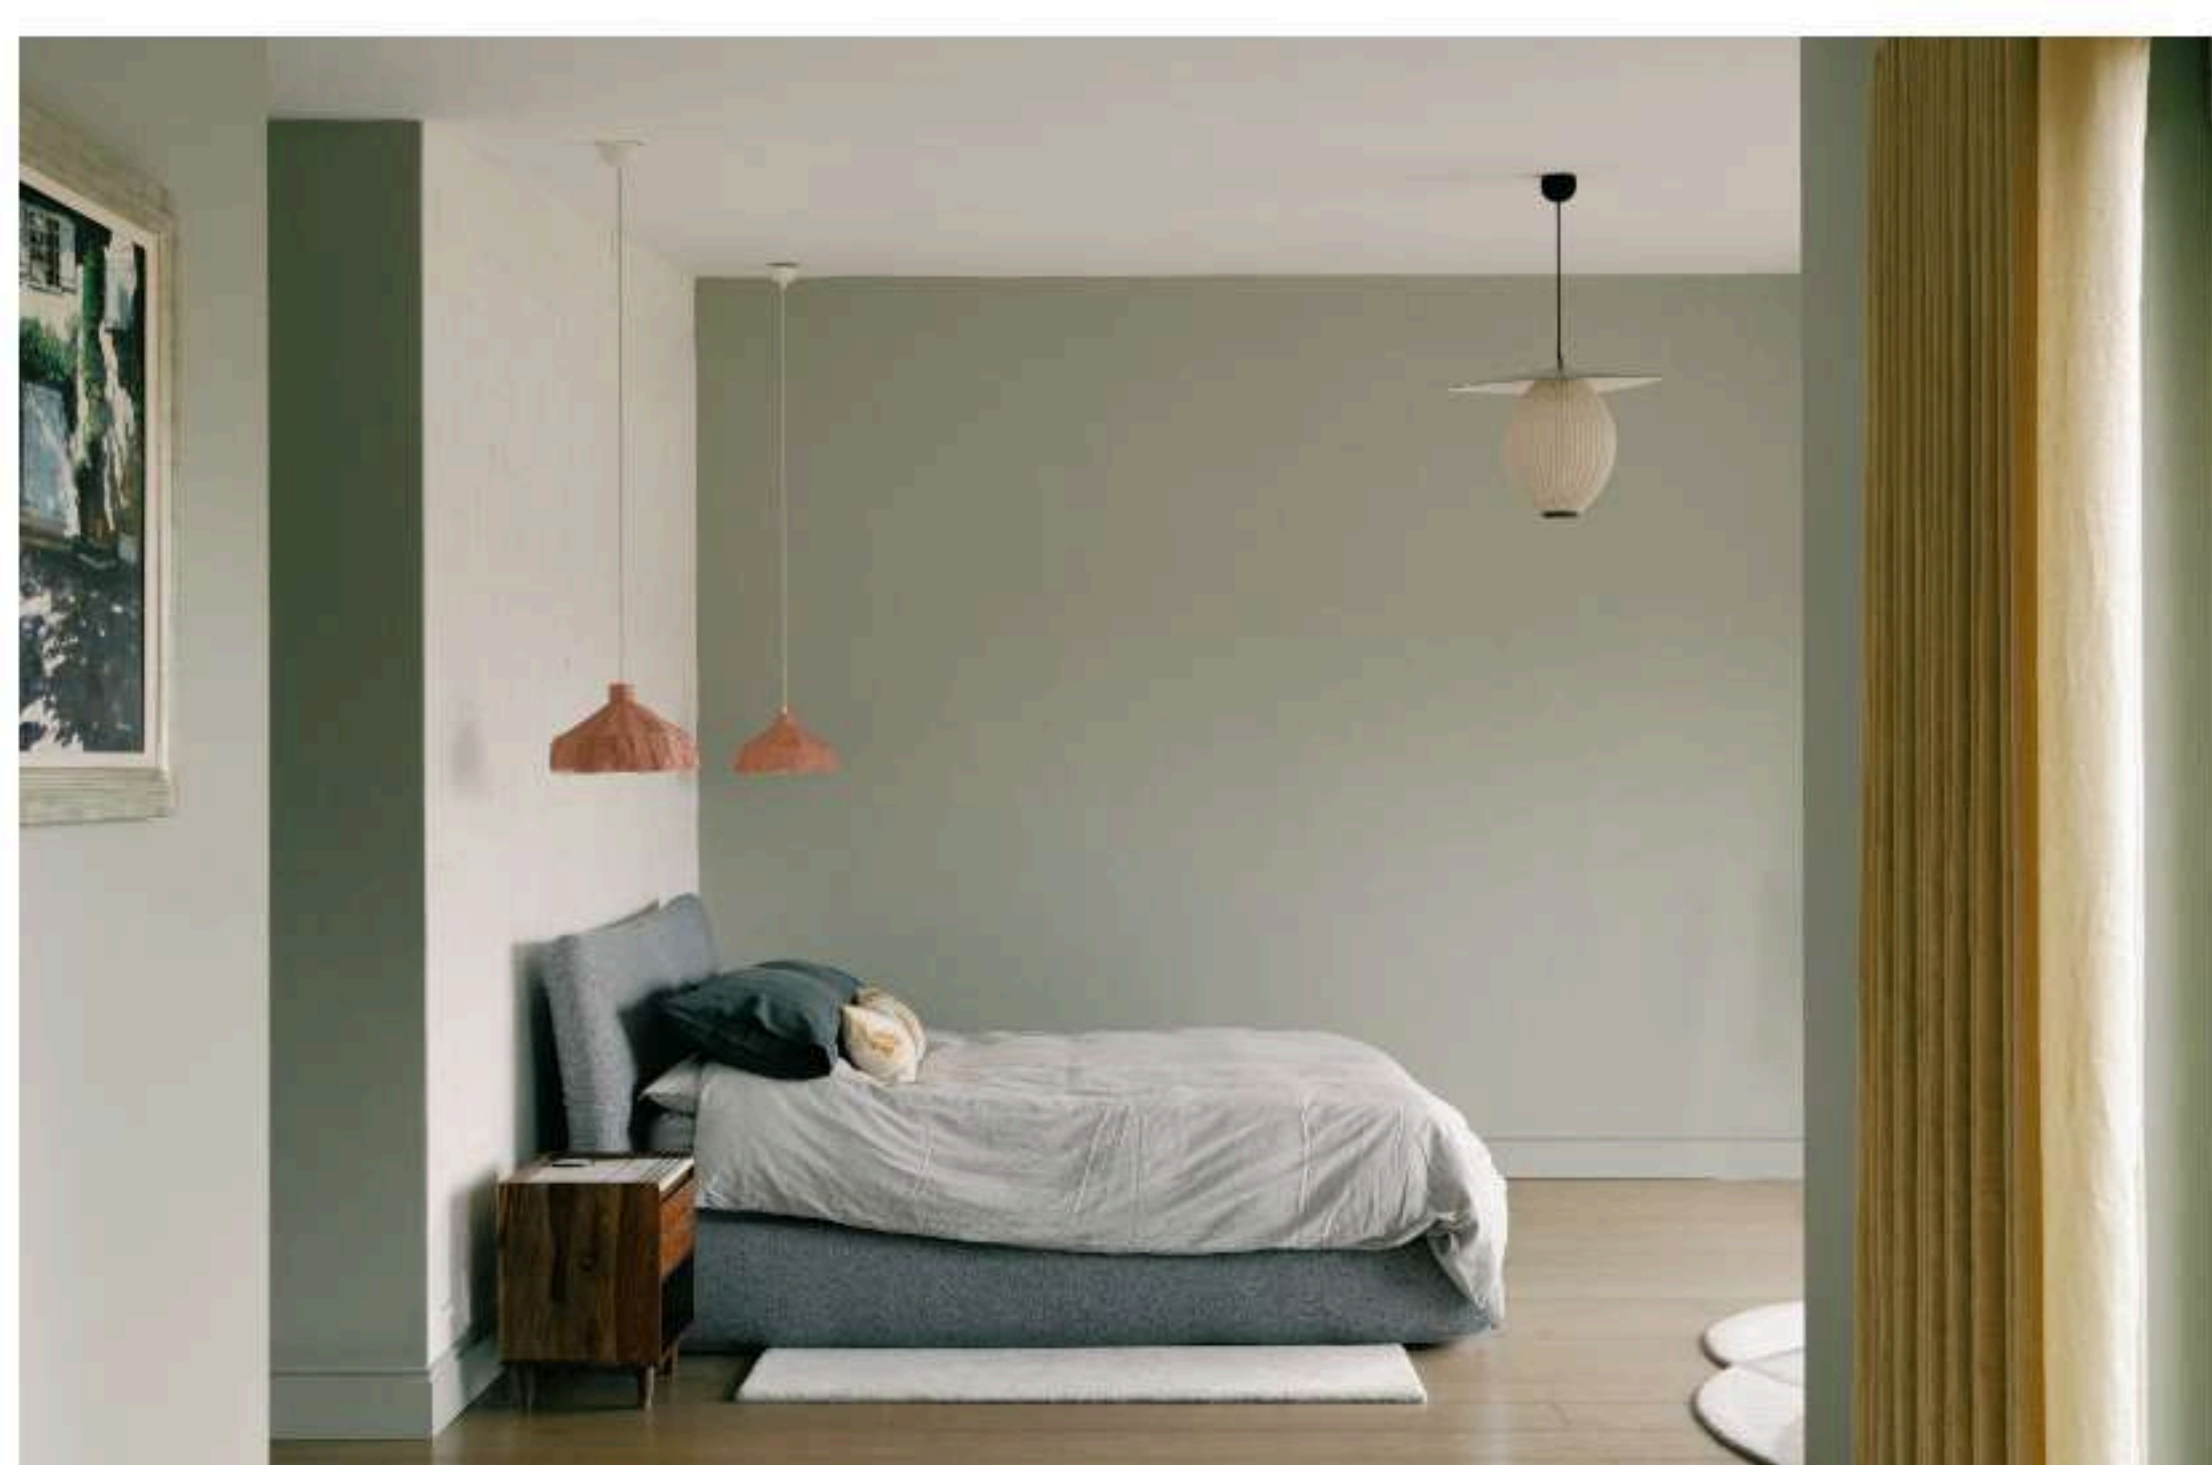

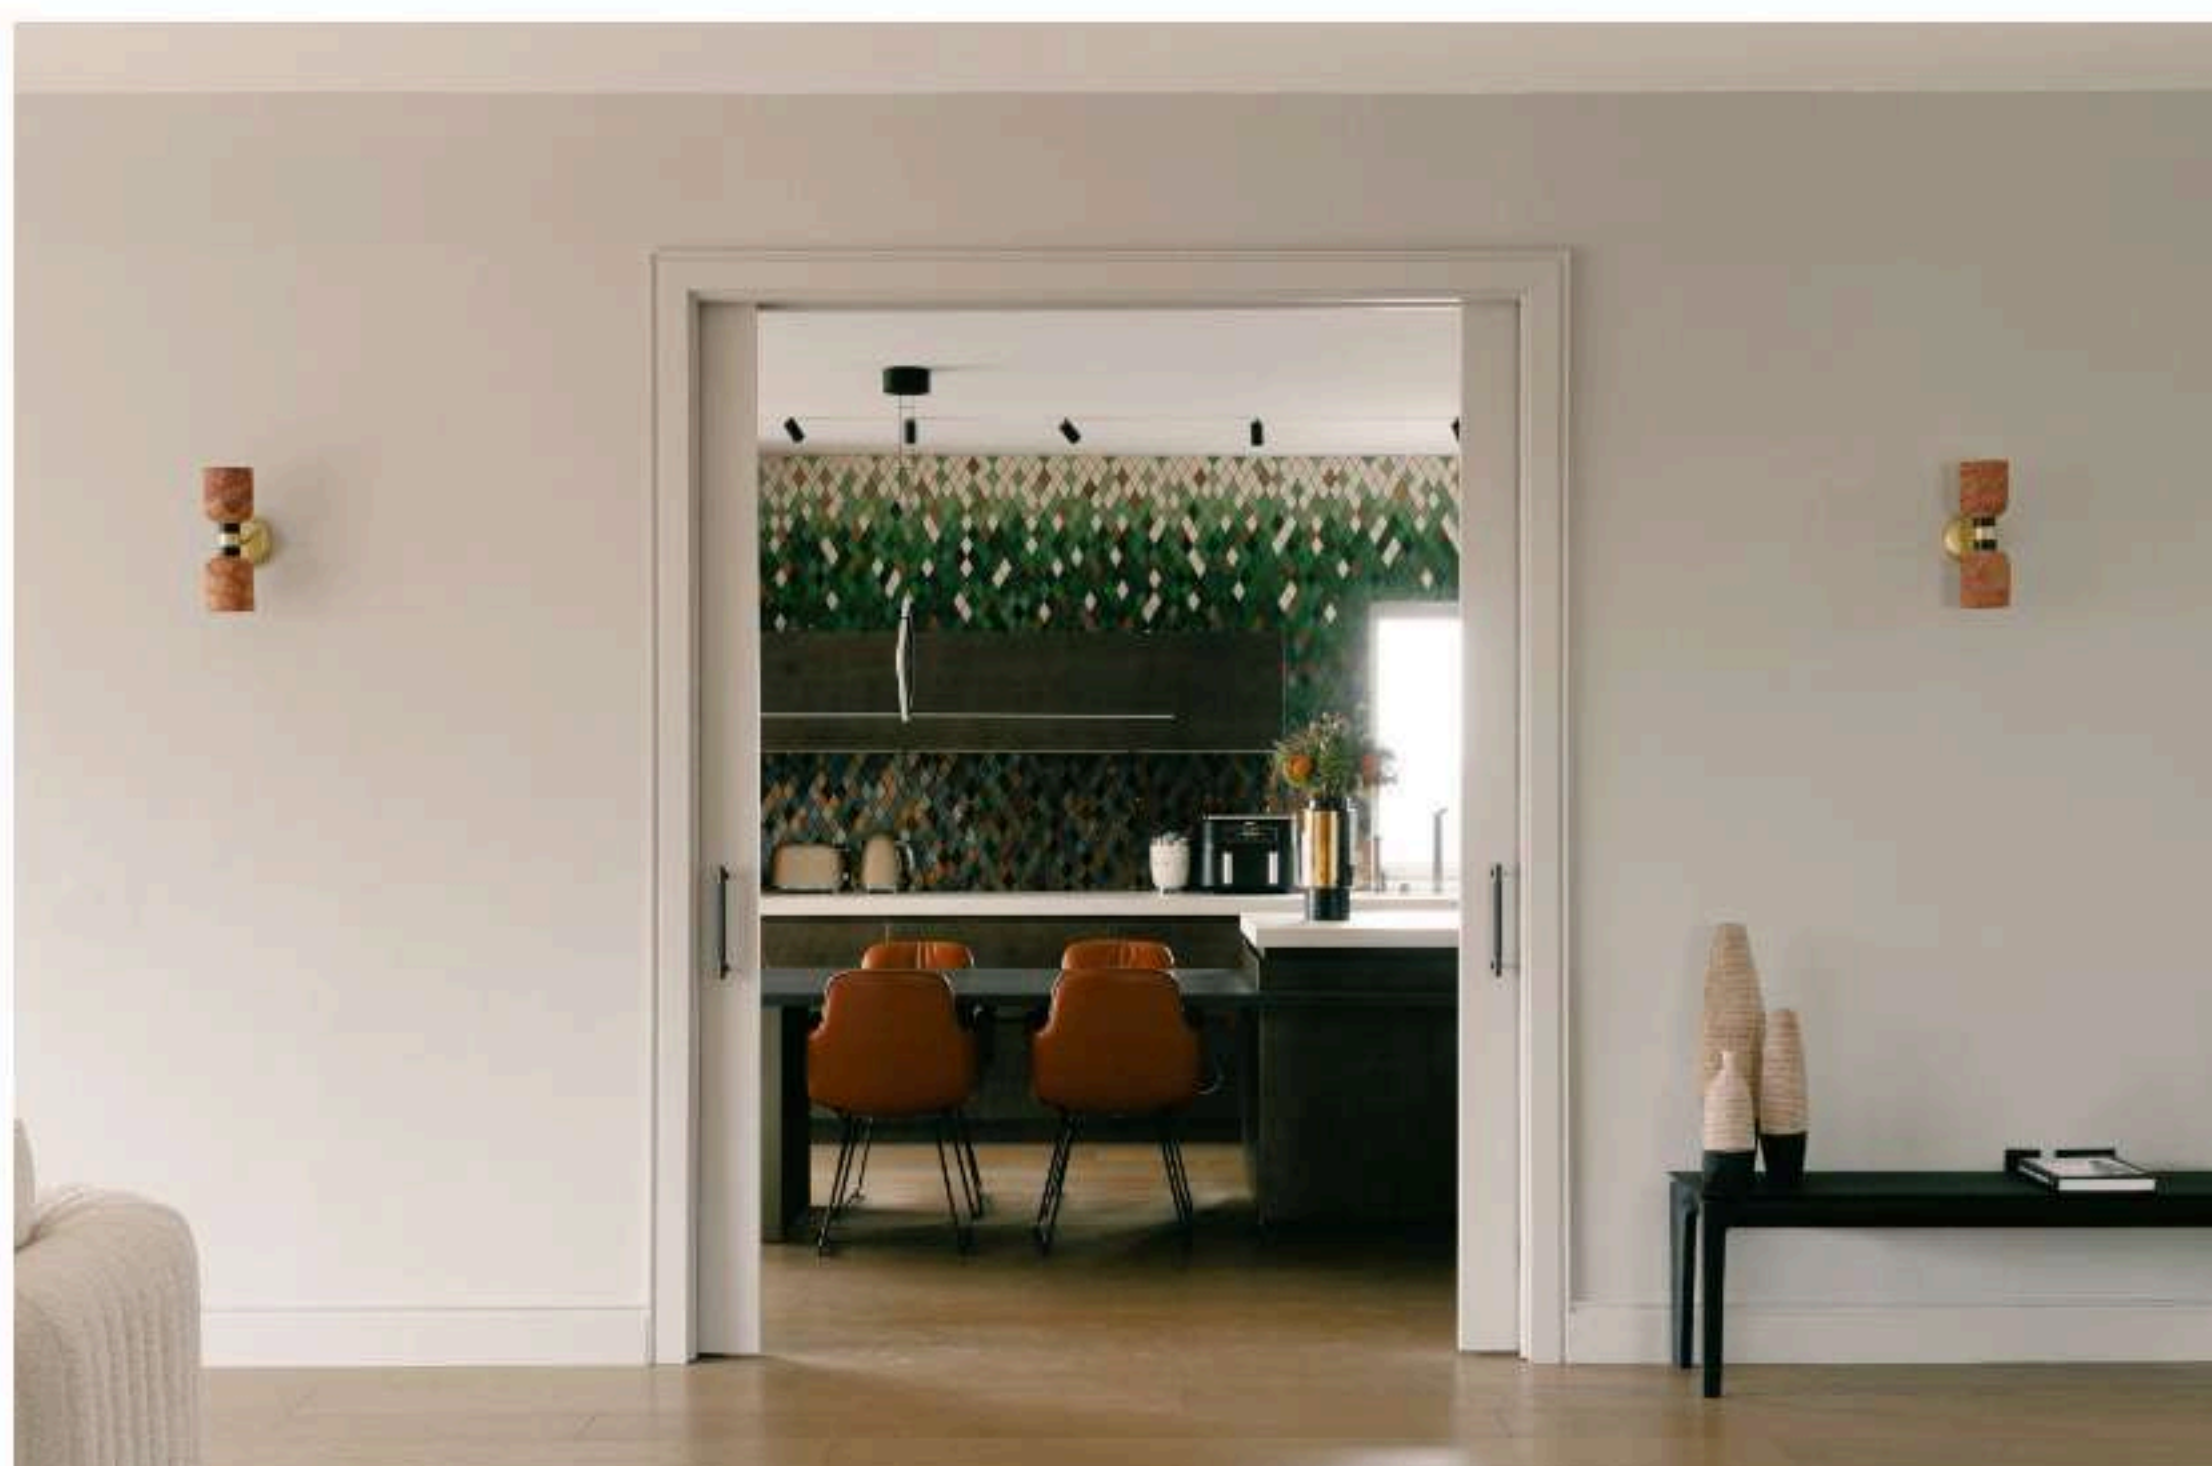

The carefully restored facades hide a gem of minimalistic architecture: strong lines, neat spaces, sculptural elements.

Designed to create a most spacious ground floor while keeping original proportions for the upper floor bedrooms.

The interiors are conceived to highlight the minimalistic intent of the client vision for the architecture so they don't fight for who is hero but seamlessly work together to provide elegance and comfort in the fruition of the spaces while at the same time staying true to the minimalistic brief

London Penthouse

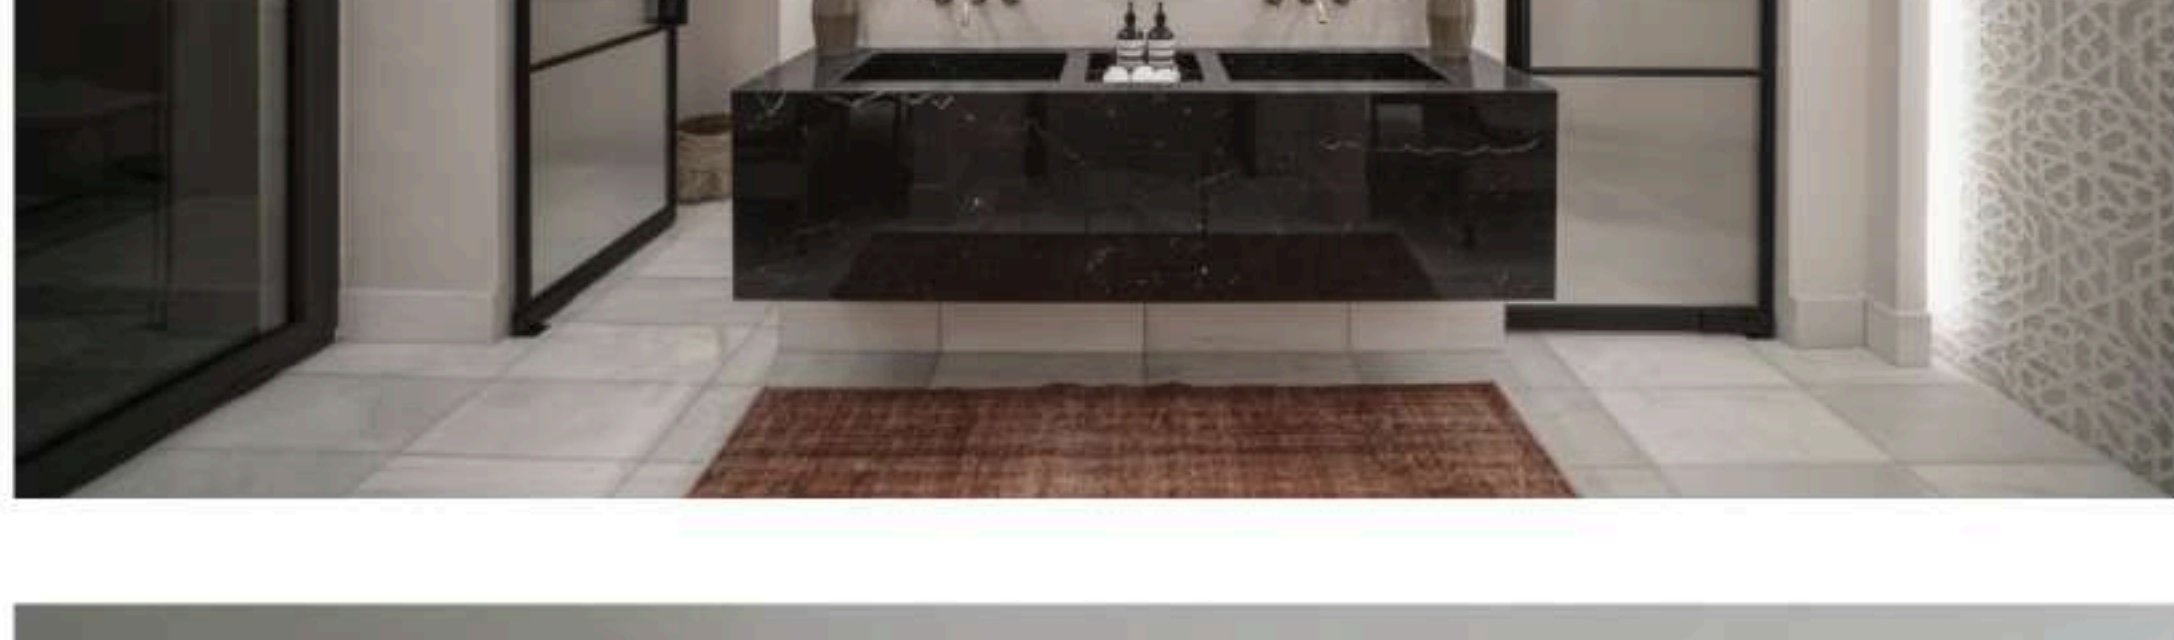

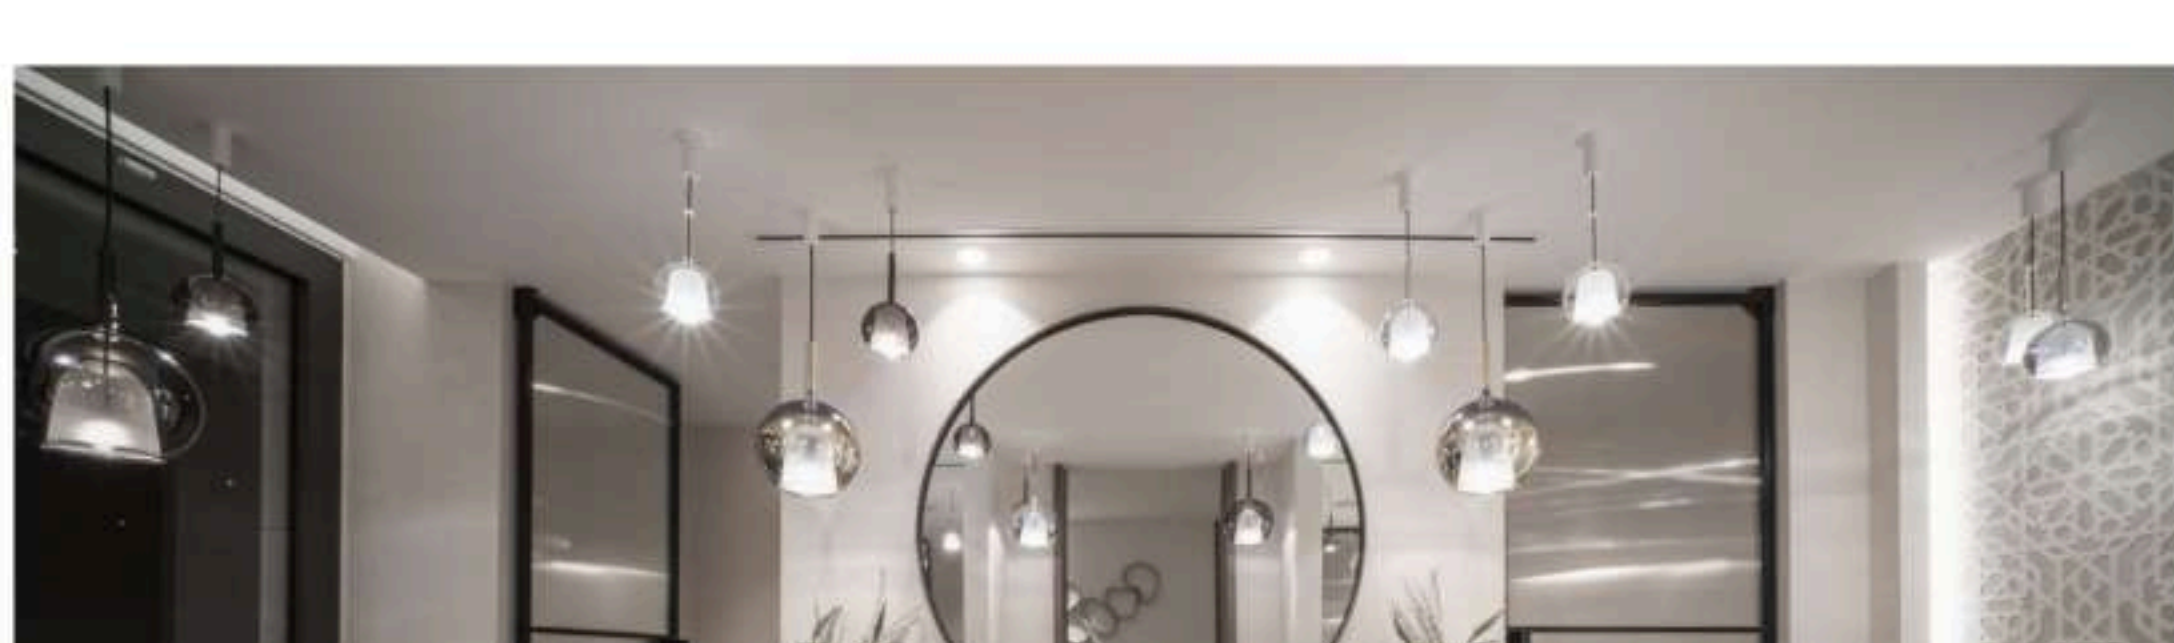

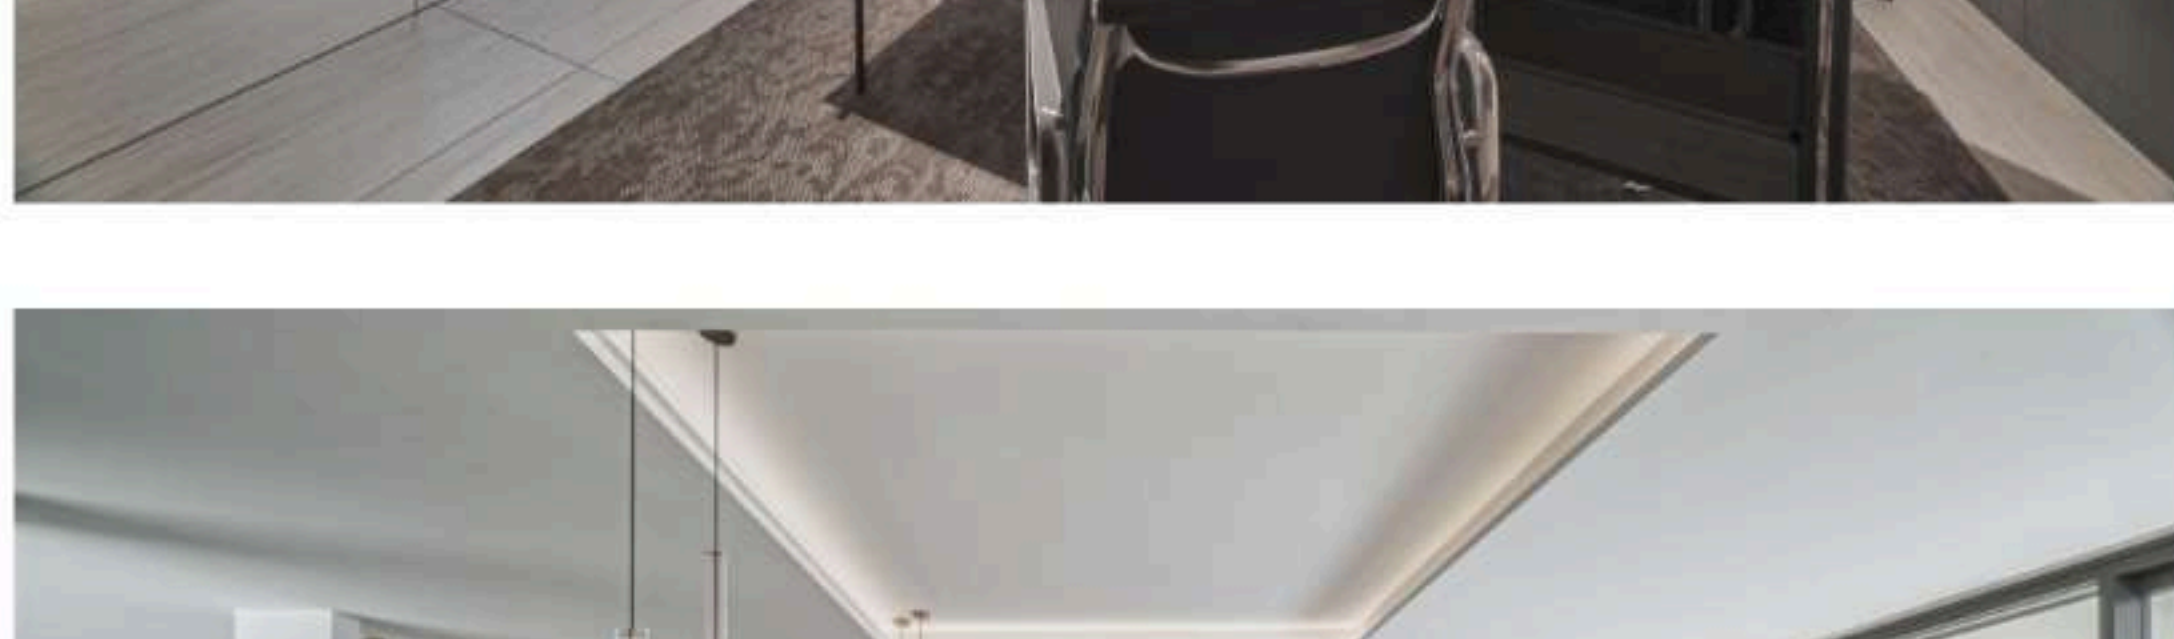

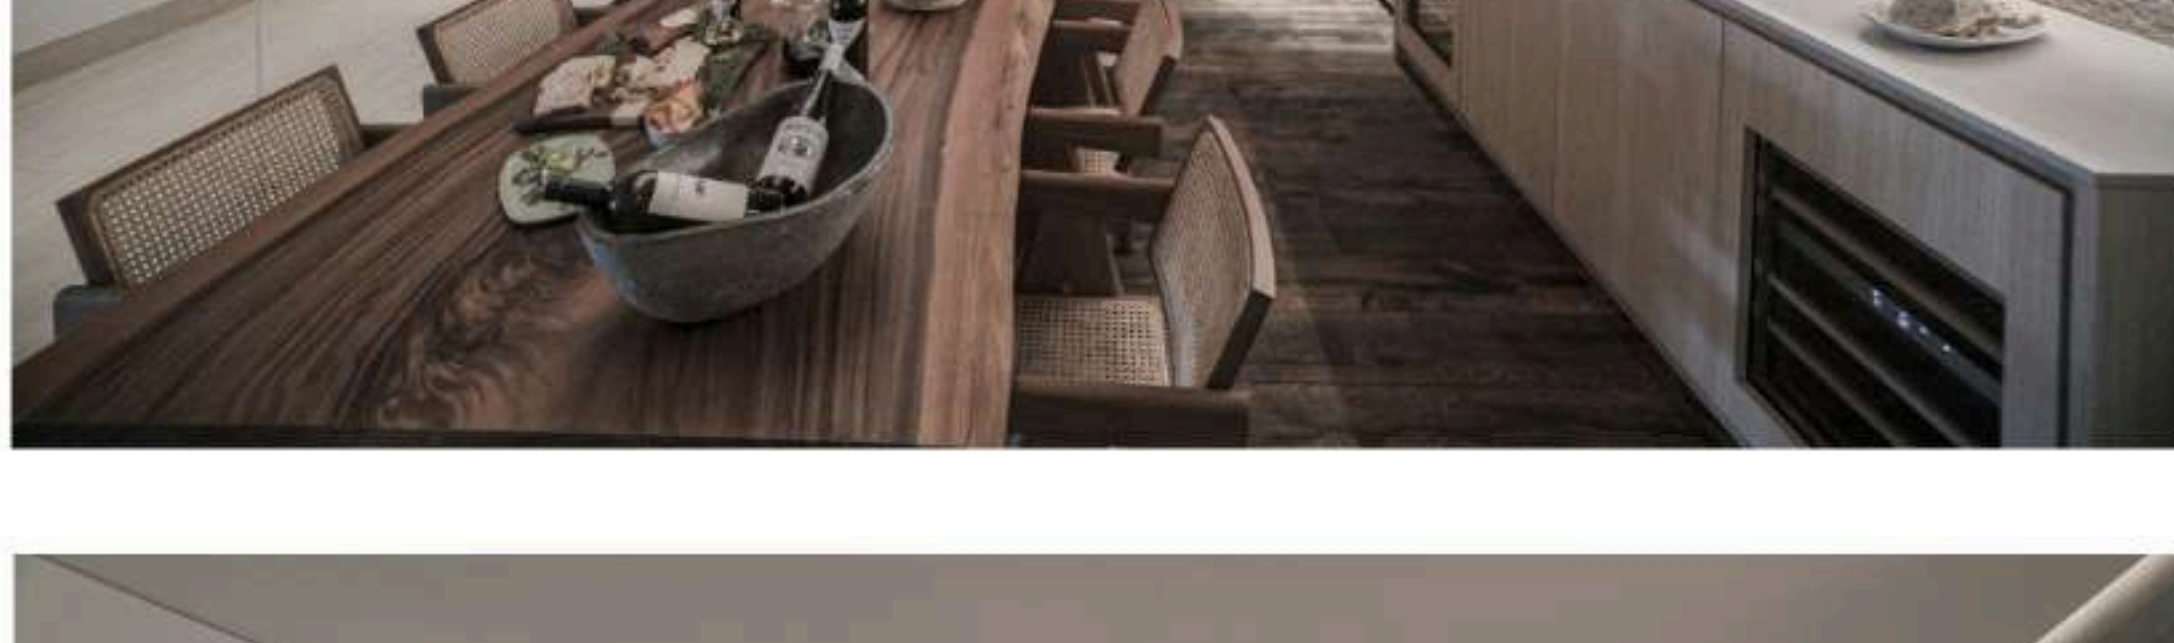

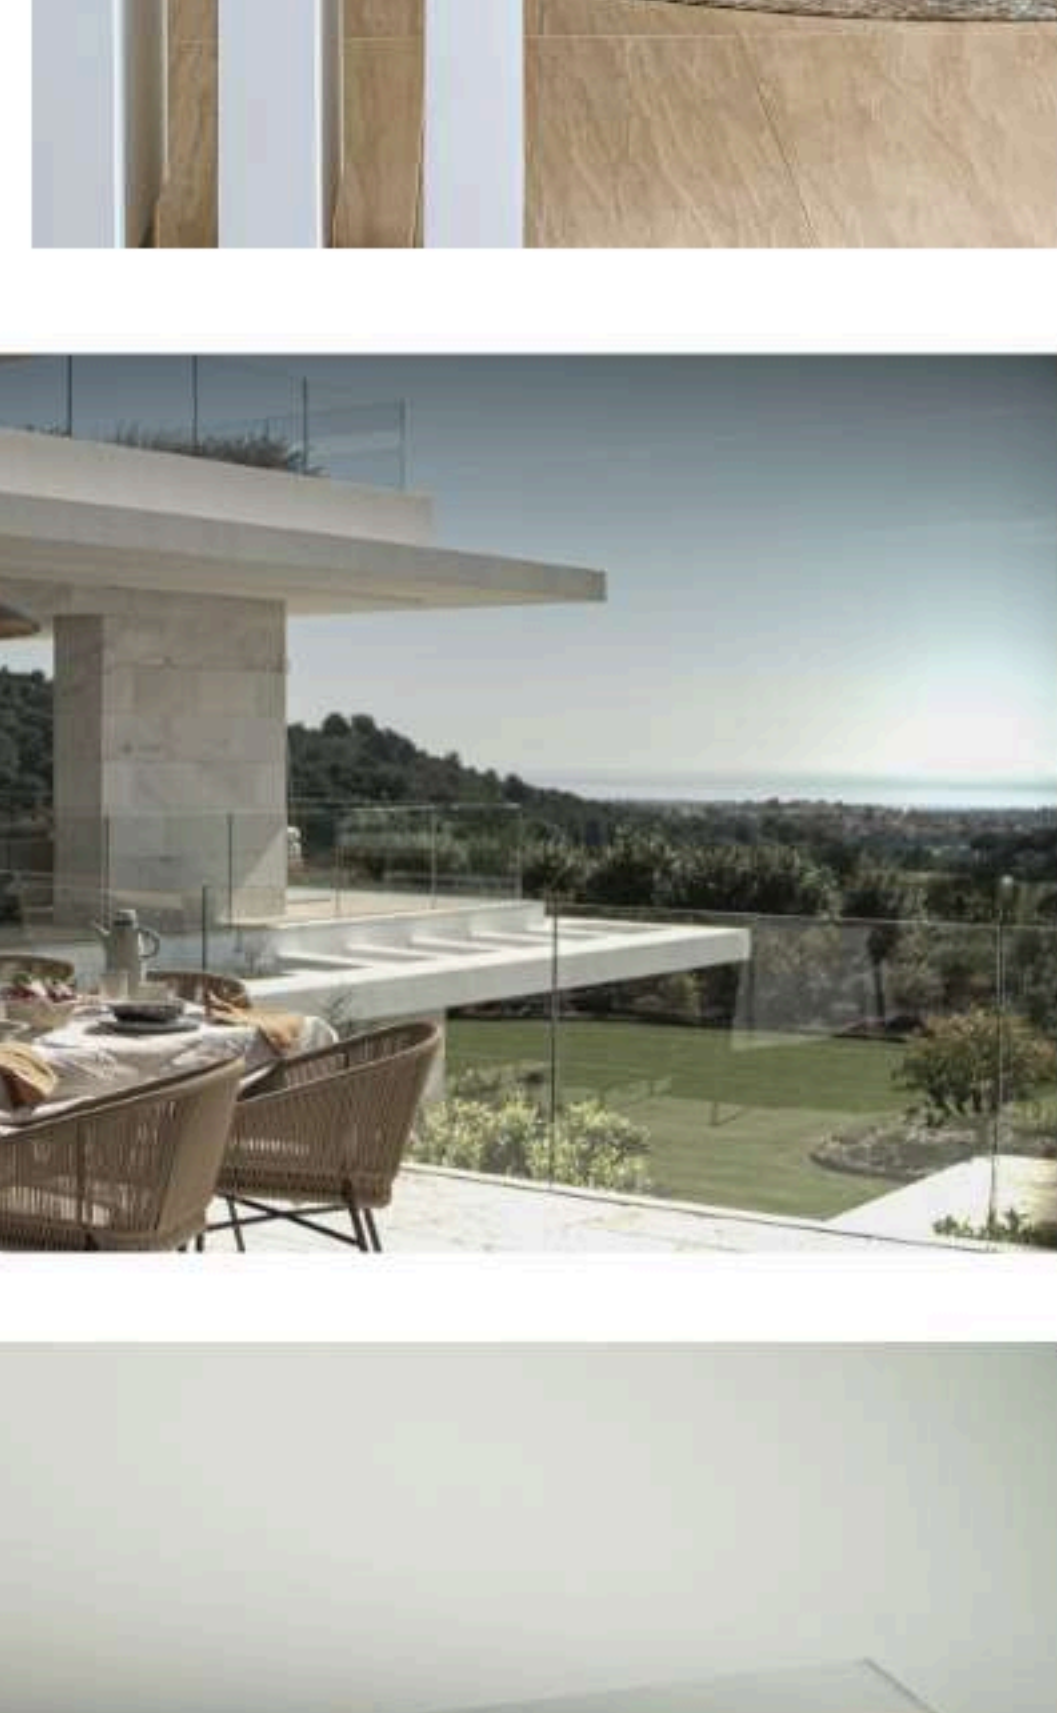

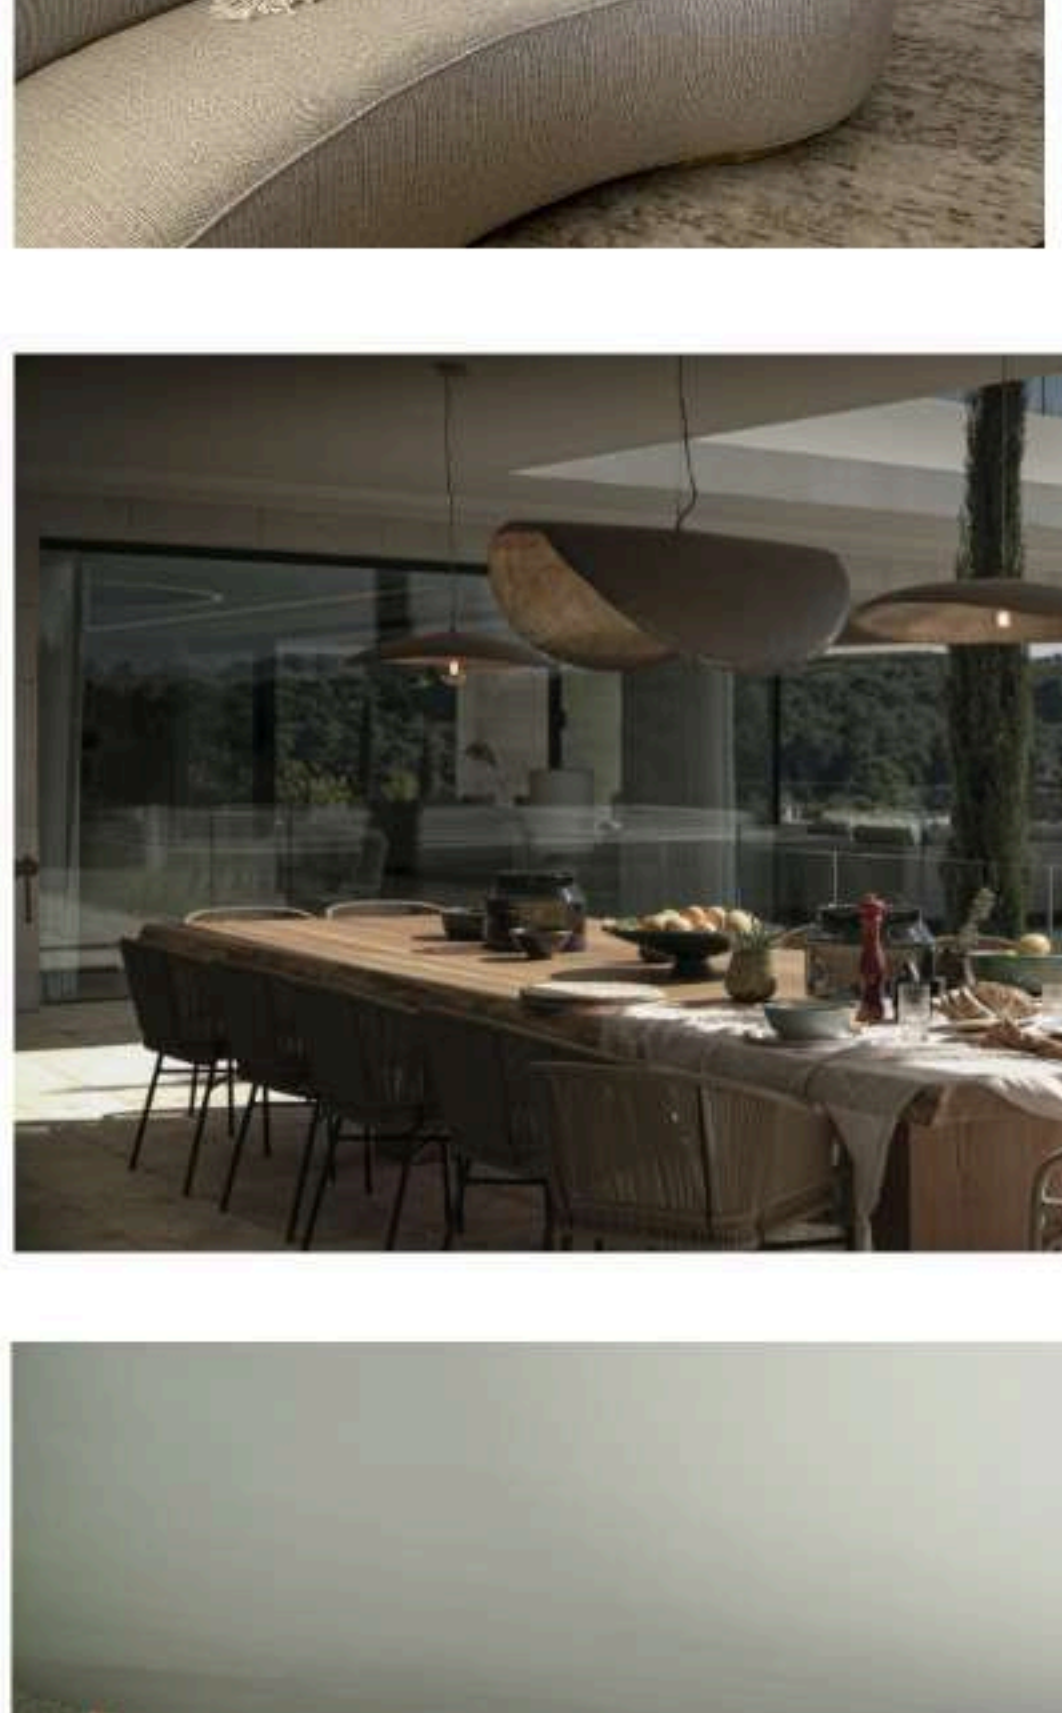

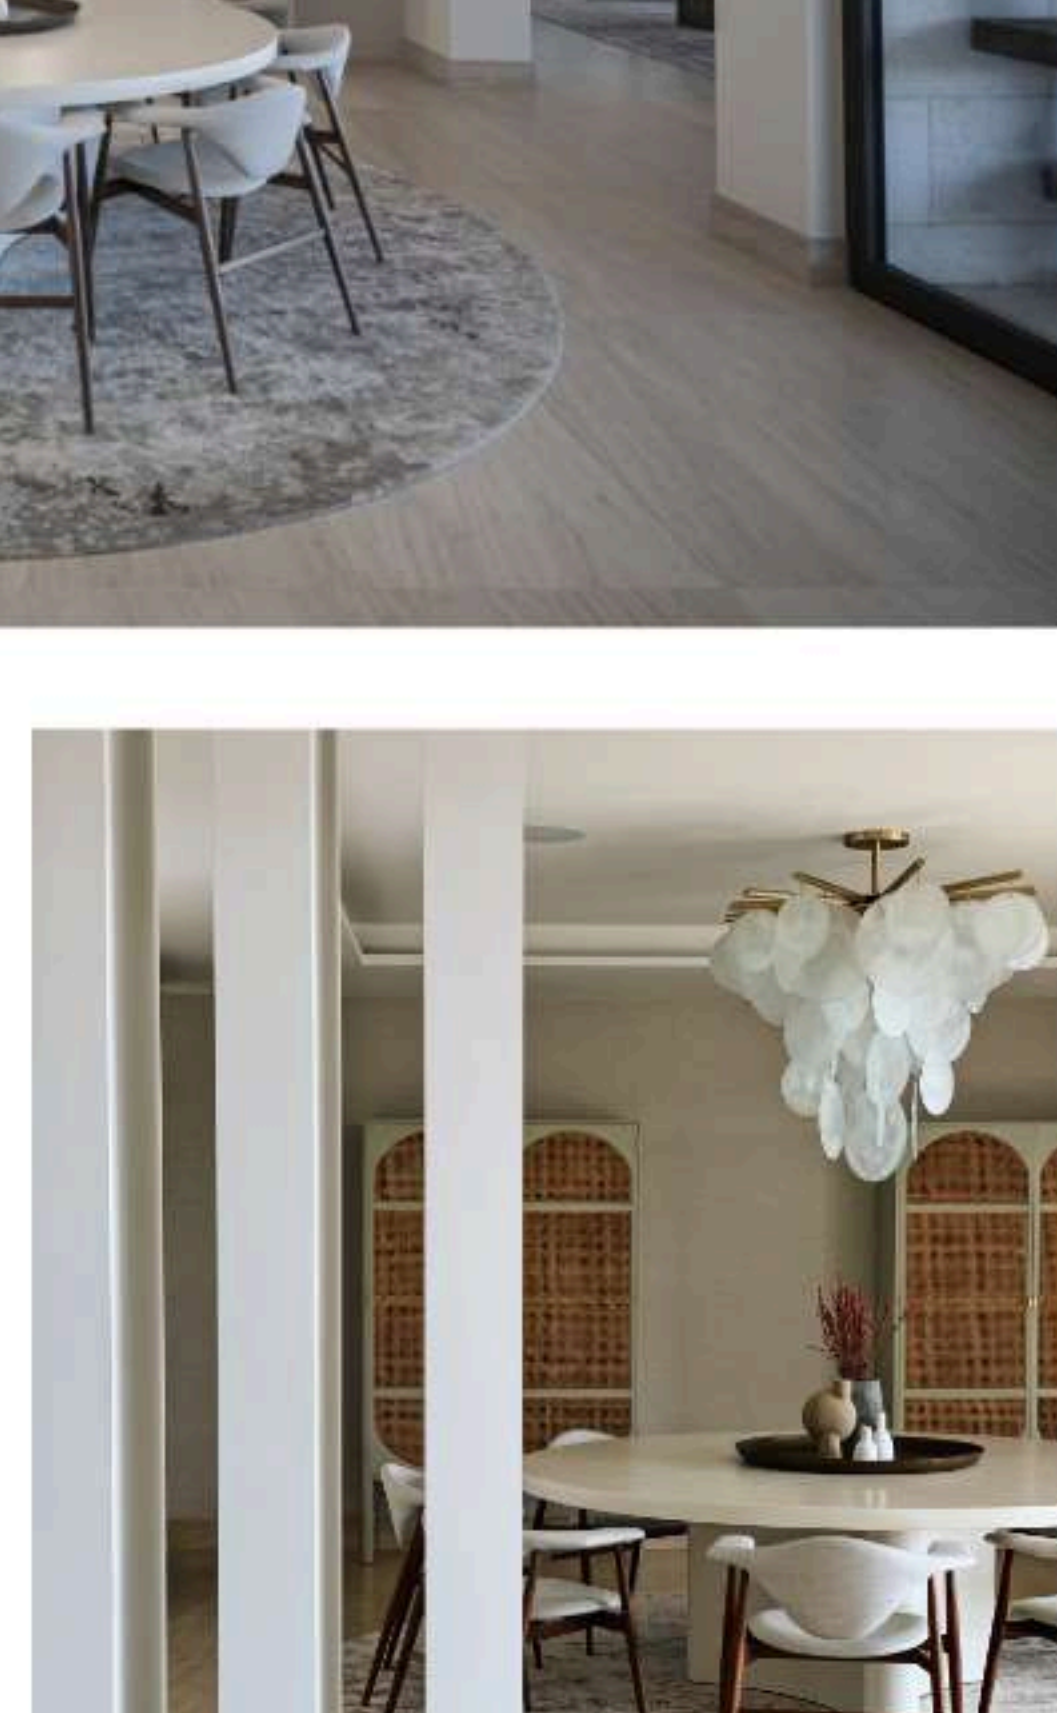

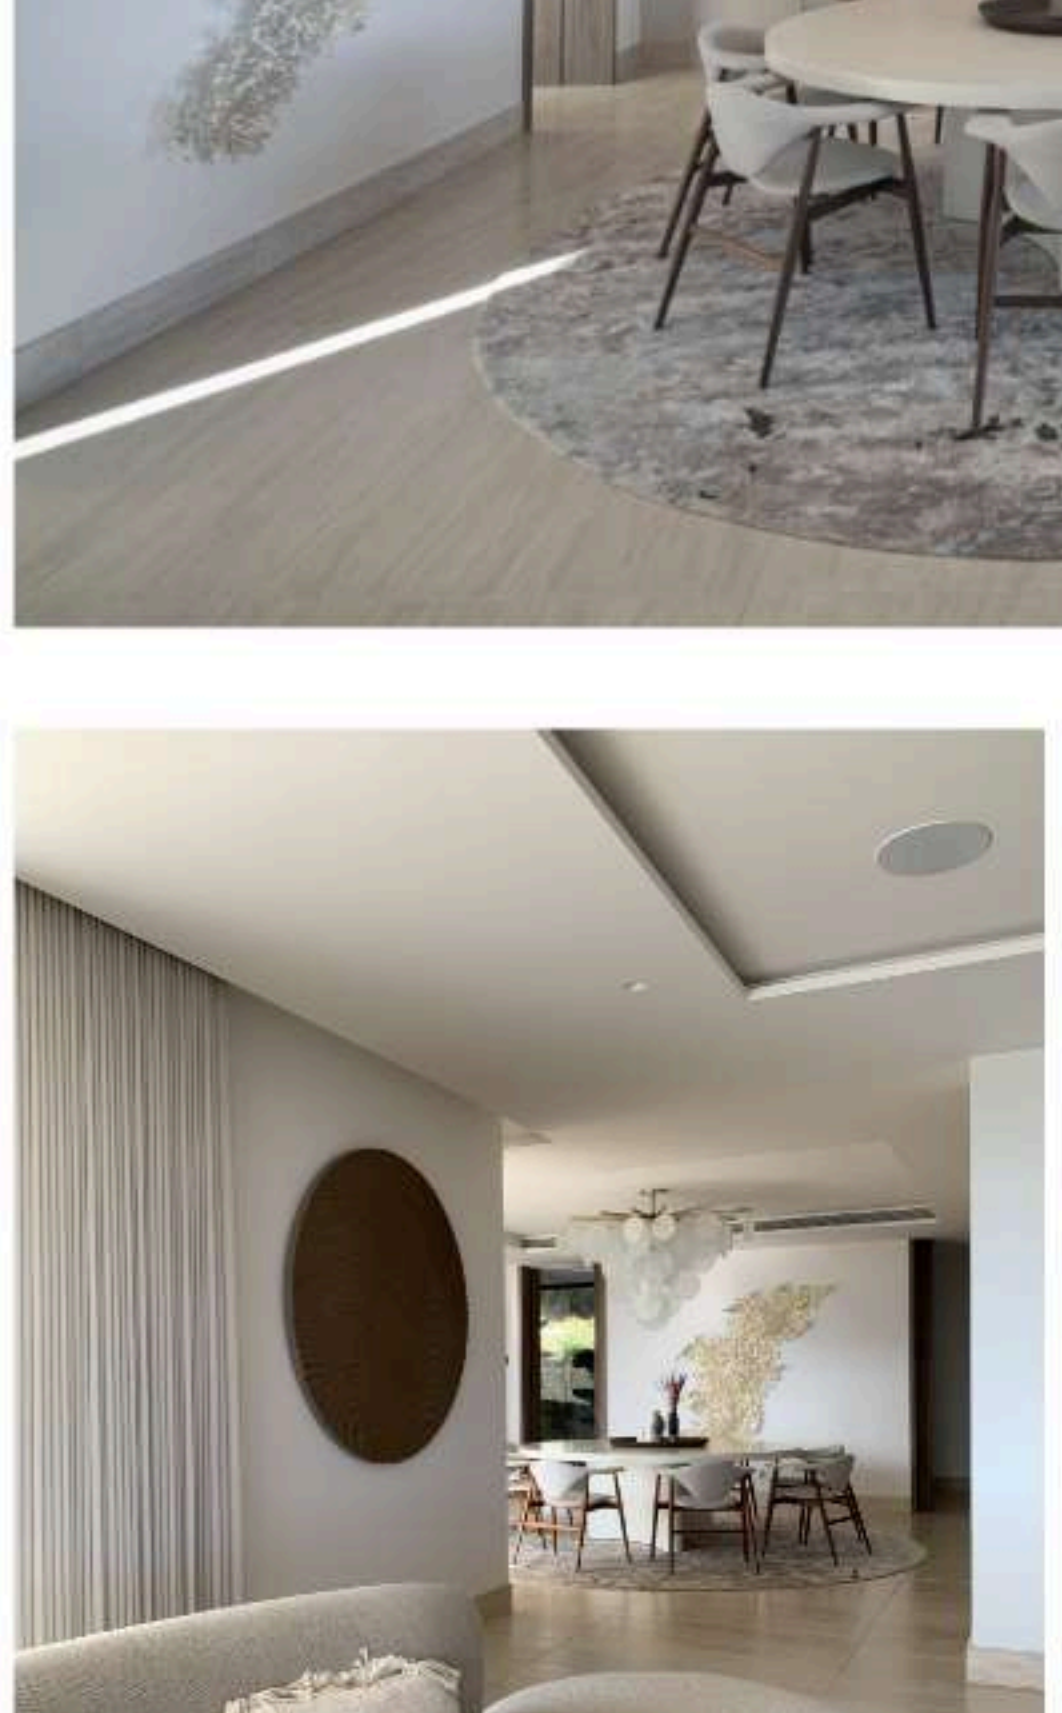

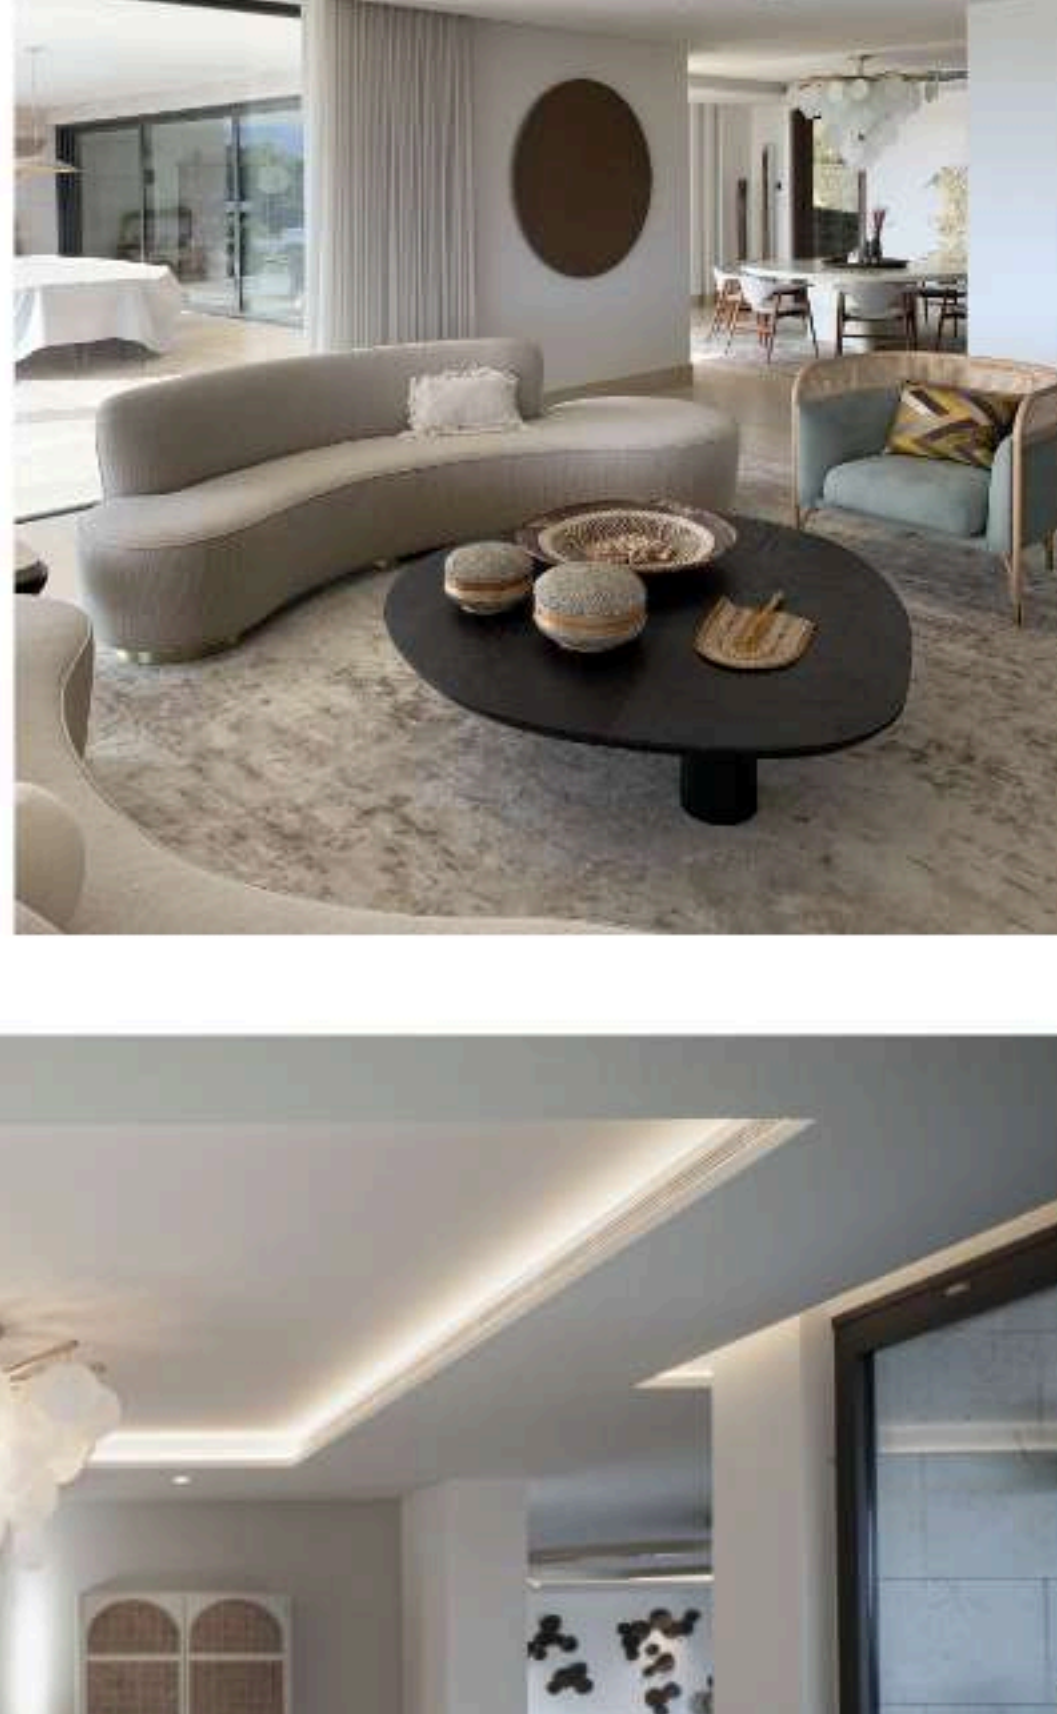

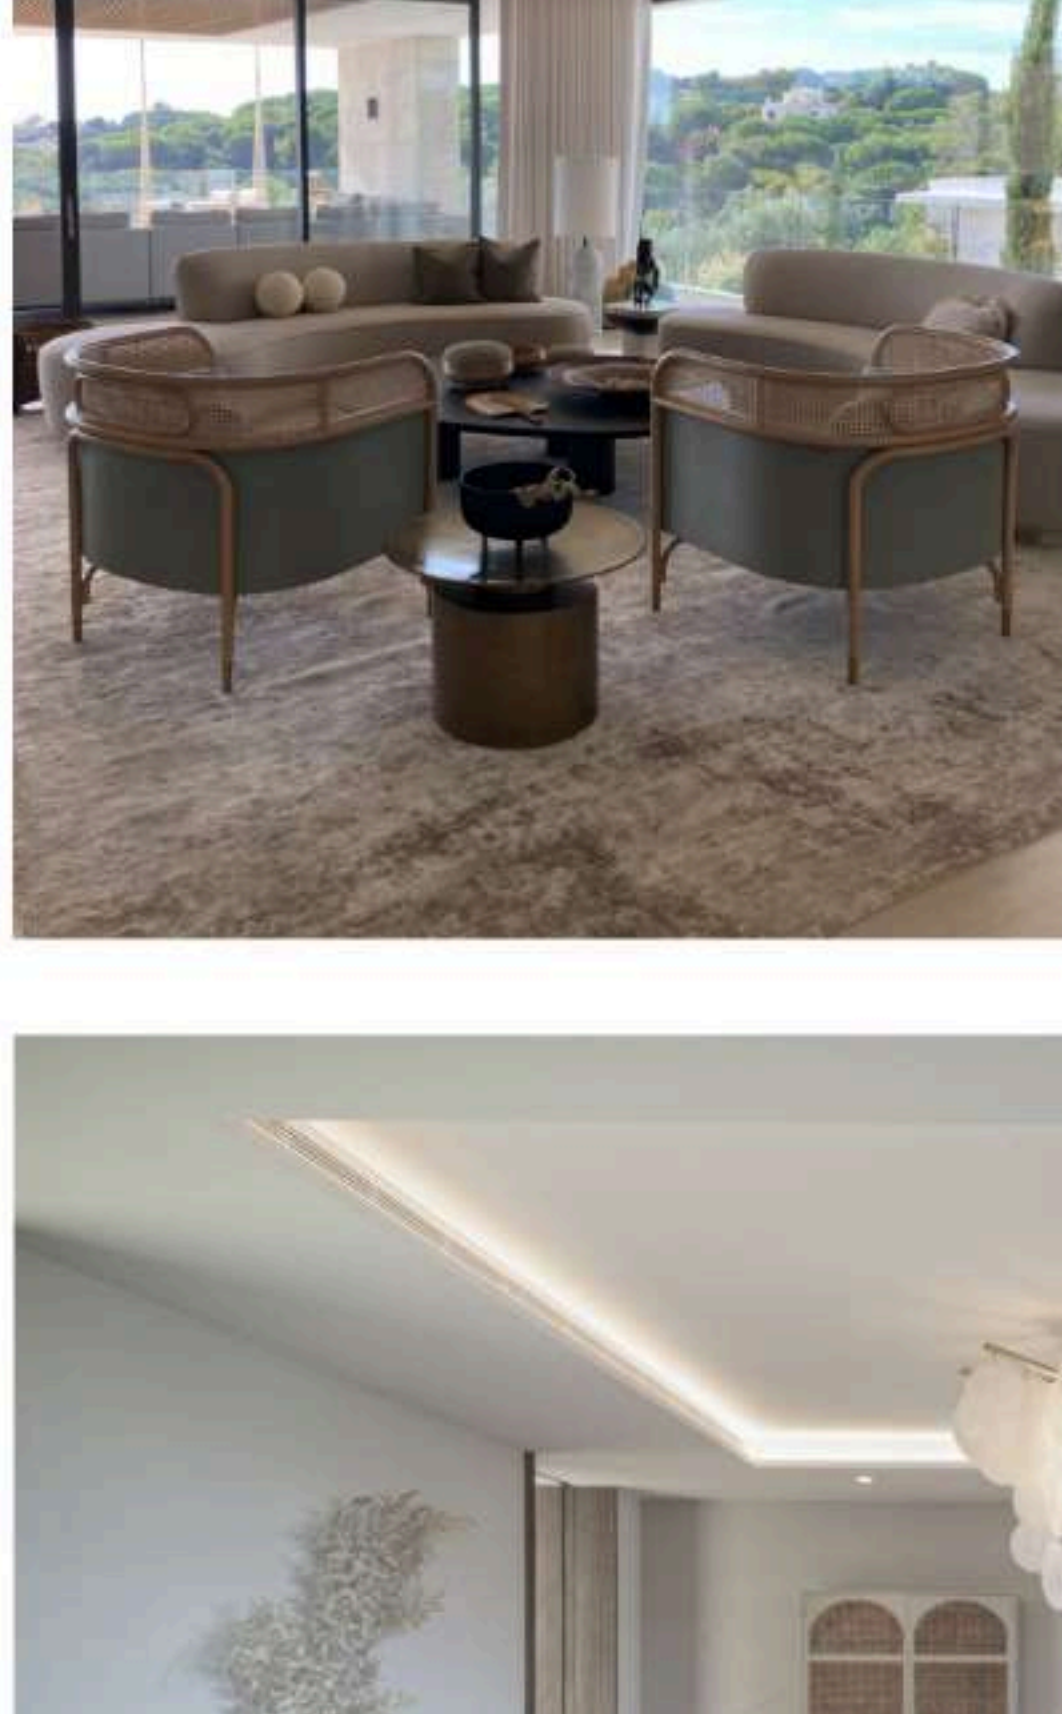

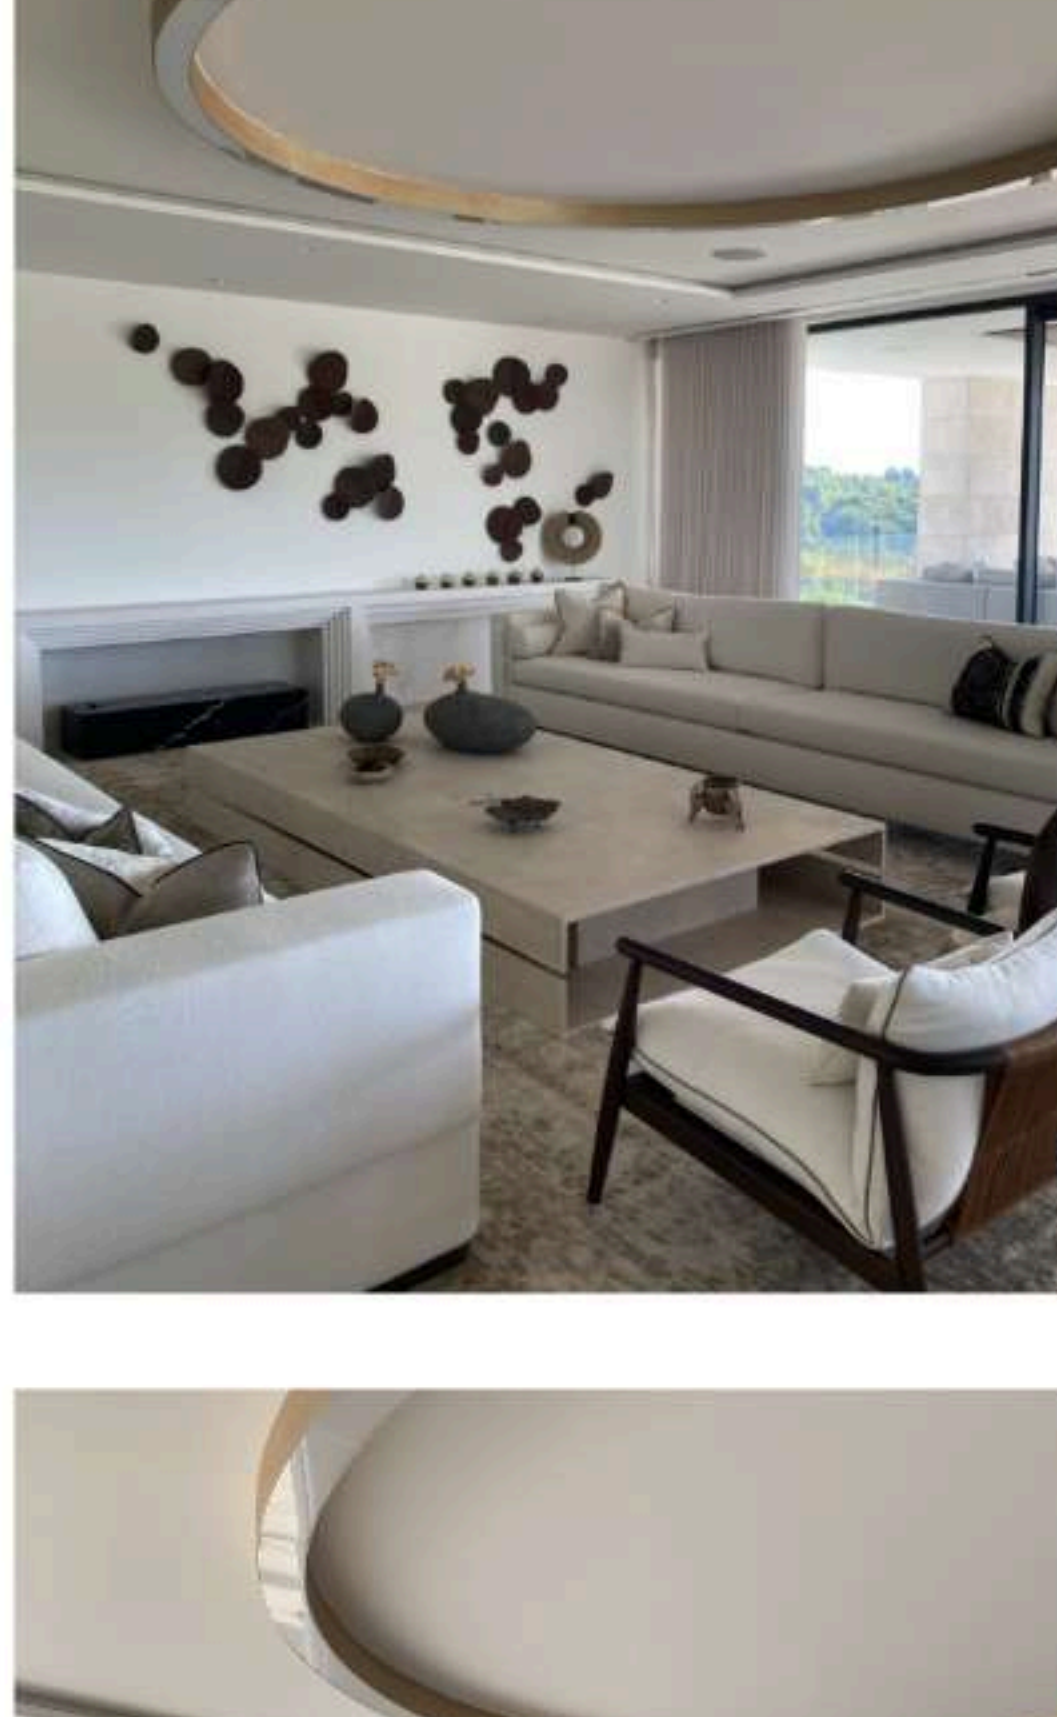

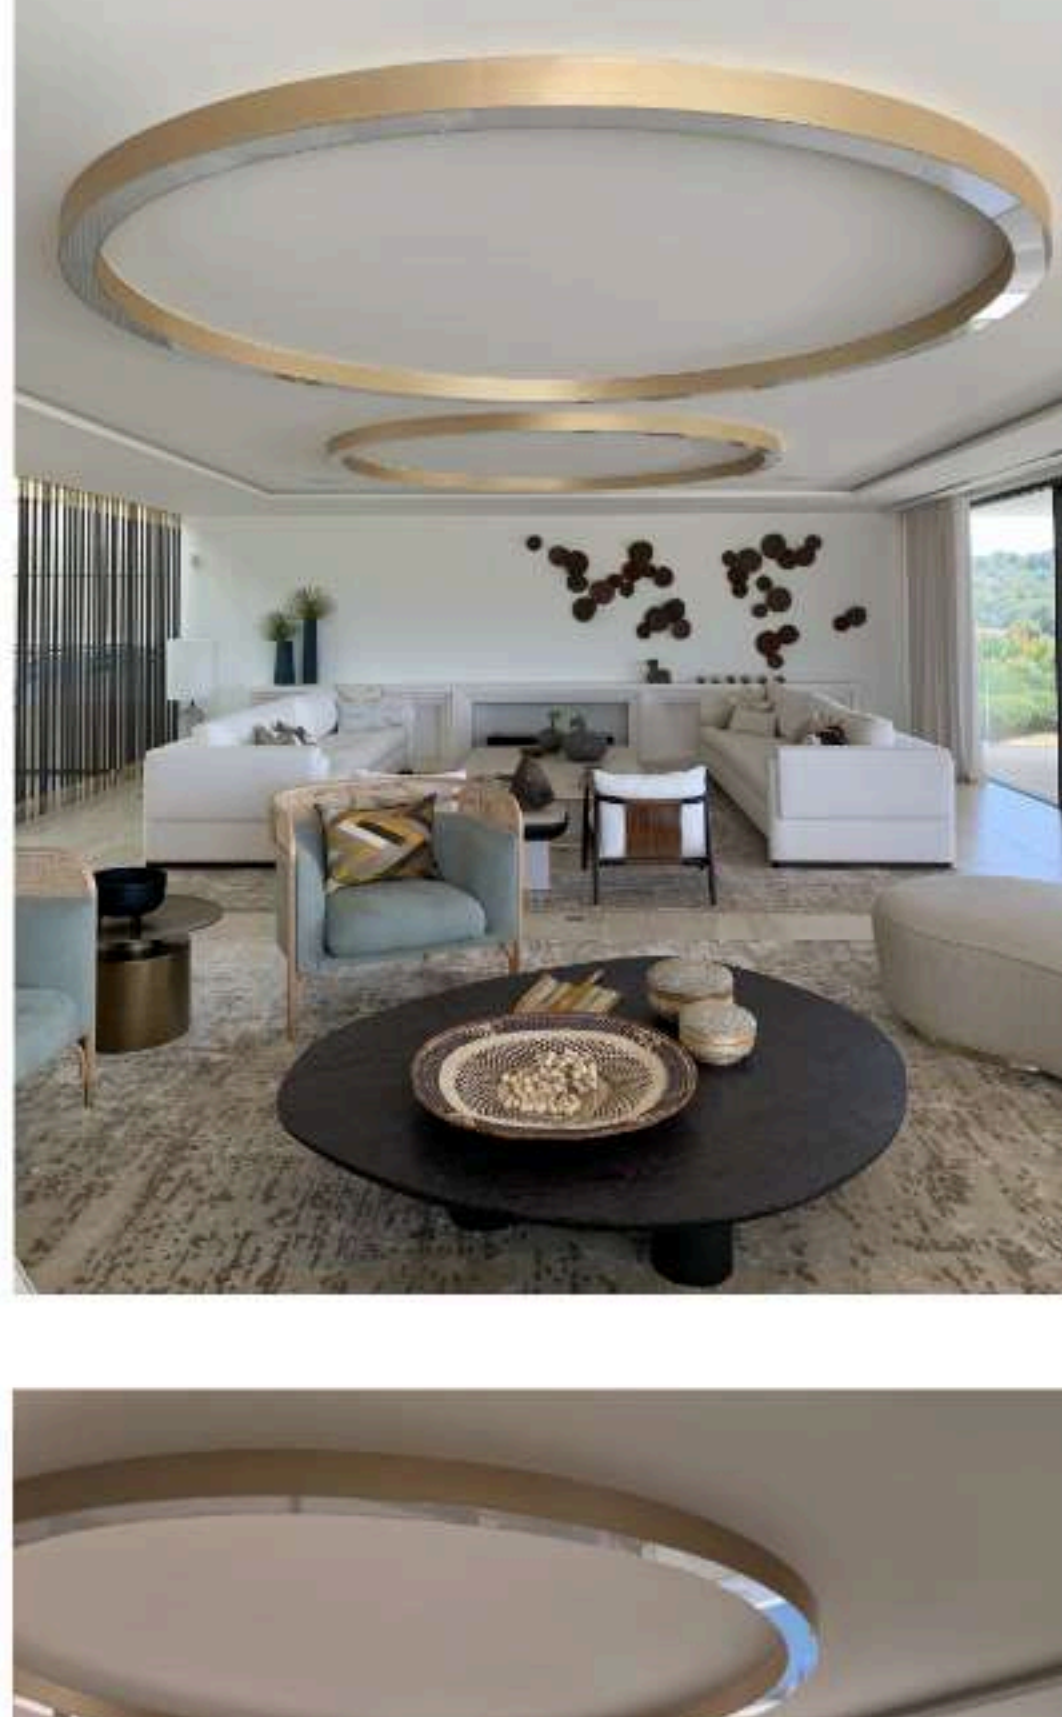

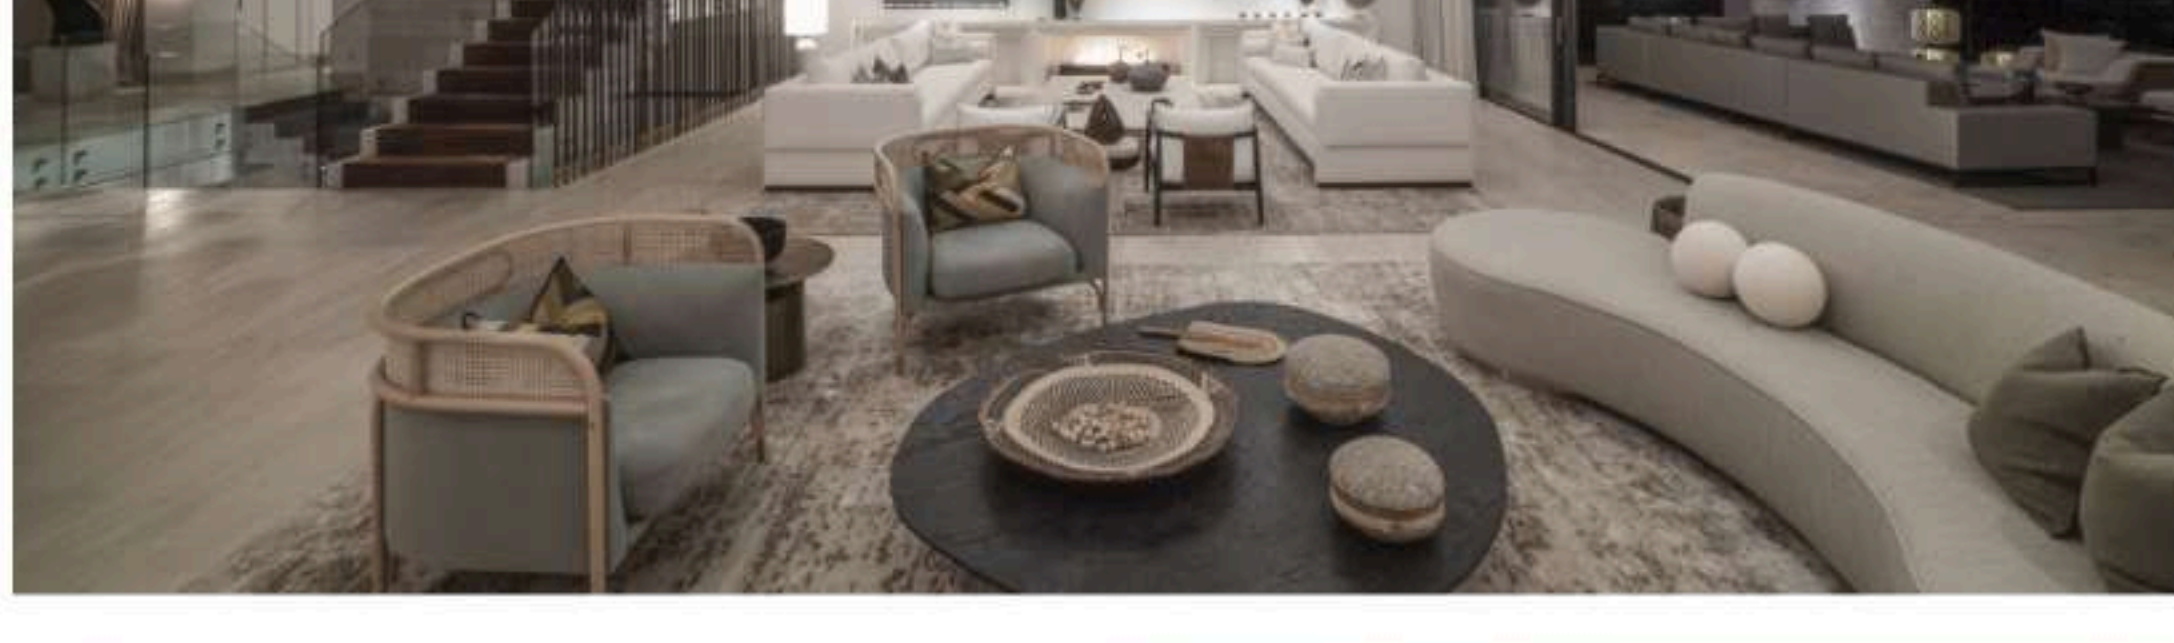

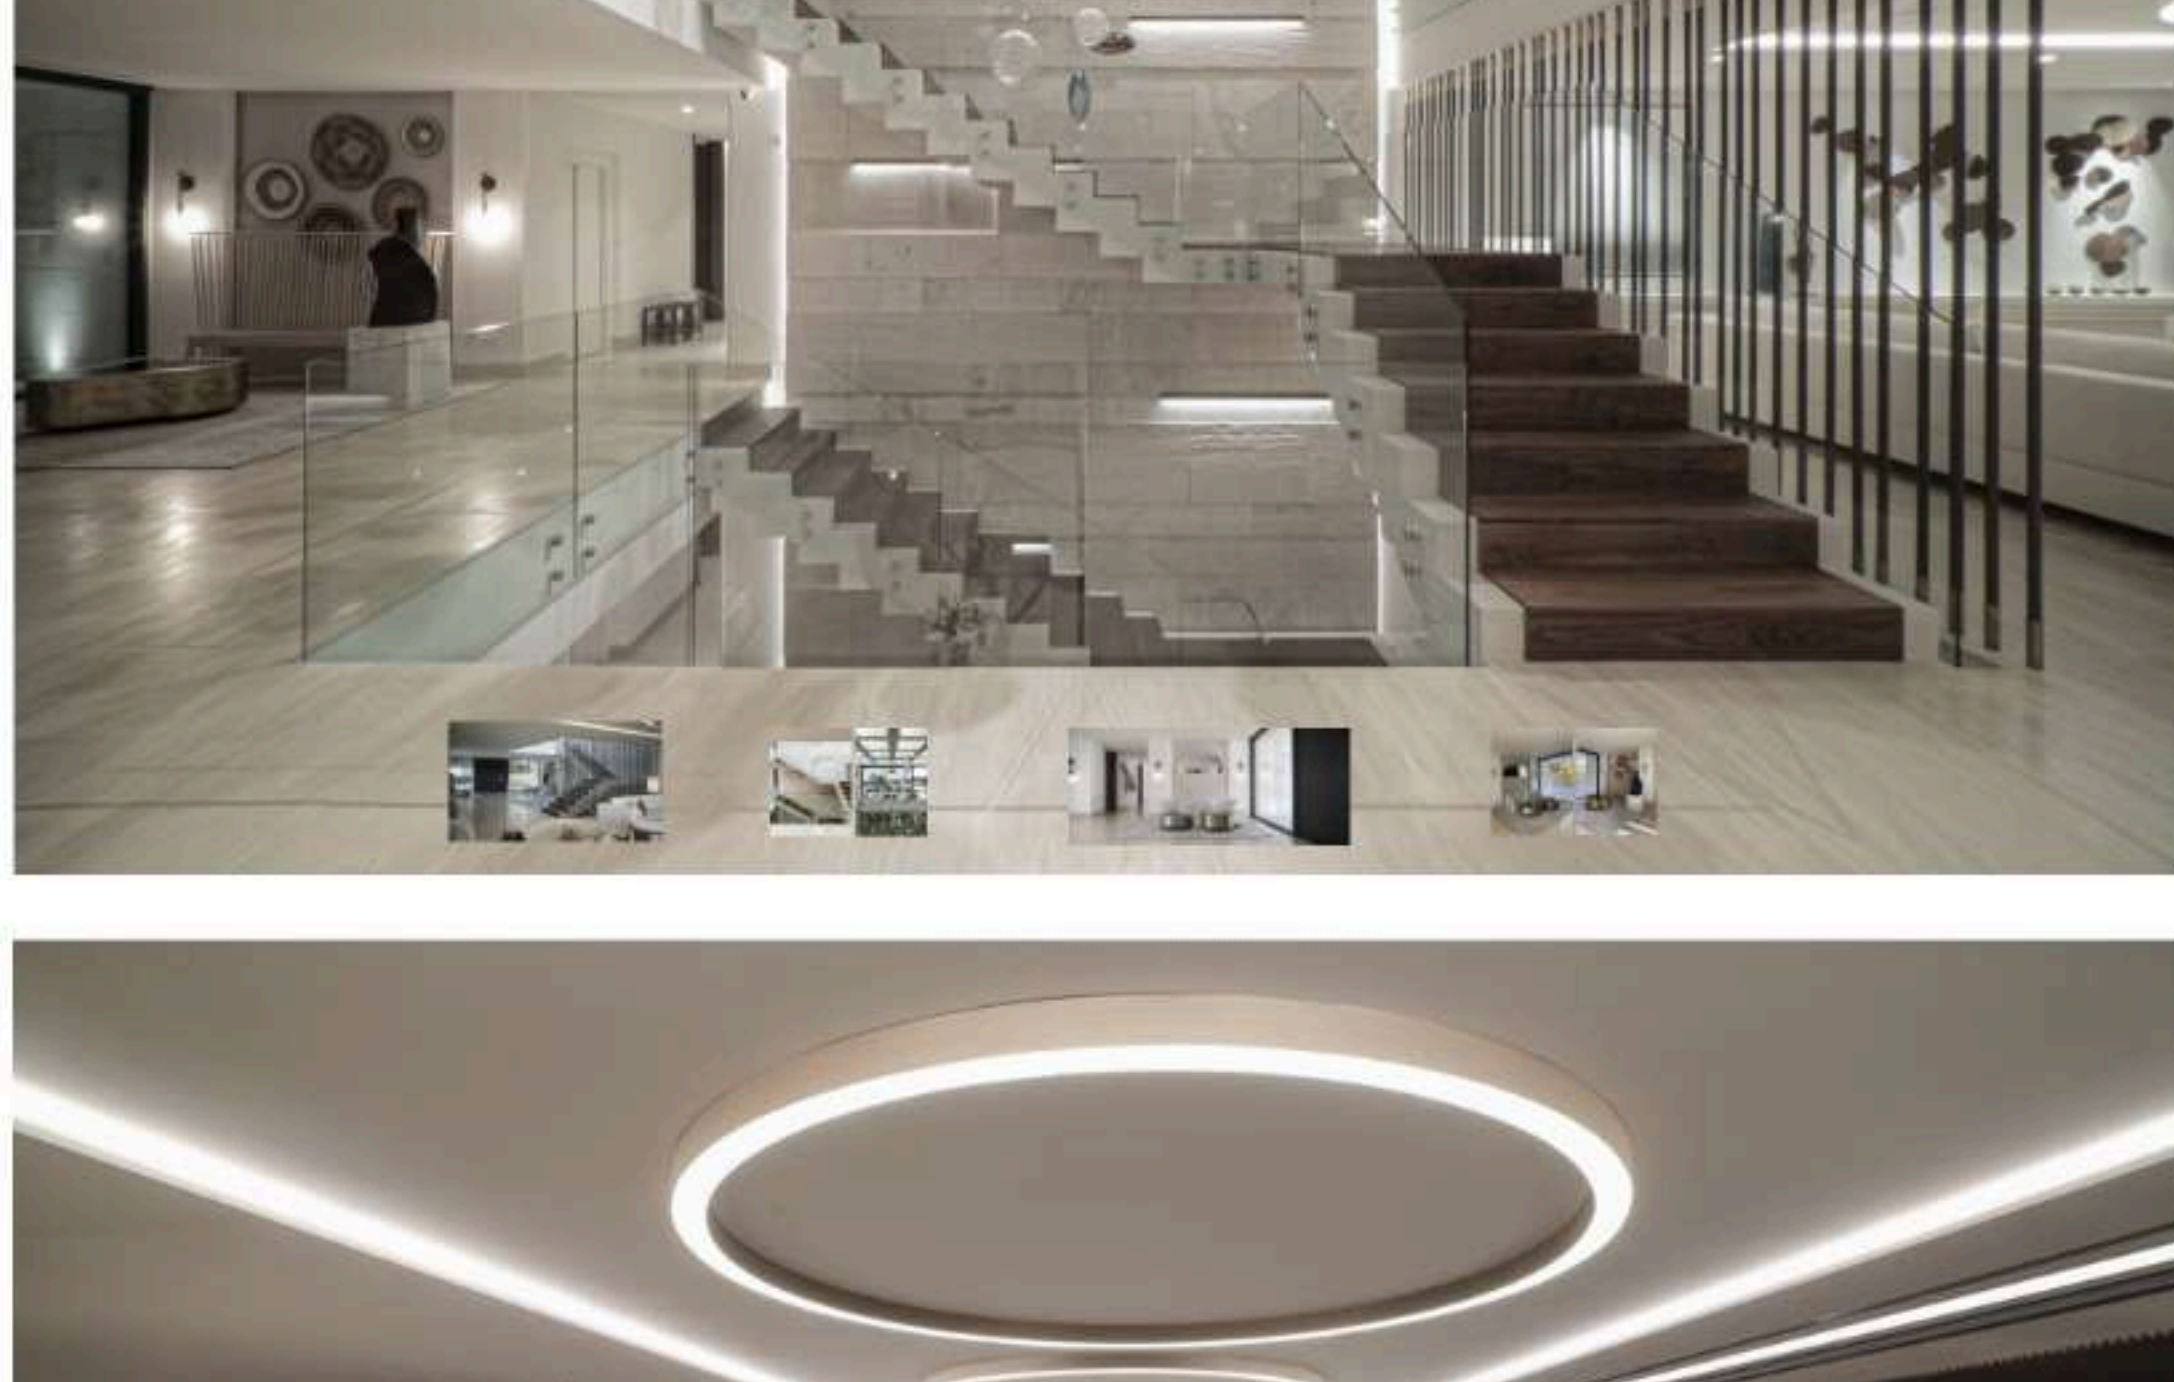

Residential

Complete refurbishment of a penthouse in the heart of leafy Hampstead with stunning views and lovely spacious architecture in need of an influx of fresh air.

The entrance and living areas benefitted from great architecture design and plenty of natural light that the interior design harvested to create luxurious and elegant spaces to inhabit. Eclectic clients with a love for colour and not afraid to push boundaries allowed for unconventional design choices, the result: a fun and elegant apartment.

Sotogrande, Family resort

Residential

Purposely built holiday villa on the edges of a world famous golf course with stunning sea views

The brief from a client with which I enjoy a long lasting relationship was to make the villa into a very personal space and to behold the traditional aesthetics of Andalucía where the project is situated

With a comprehensive team of construction, architects and designers on the ground Inkfield took the role of creative director and client advisor with a hands on approach.

We worked very closely with the Spanish team to deliver this amazing property making sure it was in every detail true to our chosen aesthetic and to fully realise the client wishes and vision.

The result is a very luxurious yet comfortable family holiday resort decorated with materials and elements borrowed from the local traditions mixed and balanced with elegant, timeless and contemporary items.
